Meeting the Challenge of Today

With the Spirit of St. Vincent

From the late sixteenth century comes our pattern for today. St. Vincent de Paul gives us the spirit with which to face the problems of the world. Although his world differed from ours, not so the trials which confronted him nor the manner in which he overcame them. We take his spirit and apply it to our own lives hoping thereby to glean even a spark of his courage and a grain of his success. Drawing upon the strength of God, St. Vincent faced the challenges of education, leadership, Christian living and co-operation. We face those very challenges today, and following the example of our patron, we meet them with . . .

. . . Wins the Race

During our high school years we have been learning and growing with St. Vincent. With understanding and patience the faculty undertook the responsibility of preparing us for our places in life. The ivy-covered brick buildings have come to mean more to us than a place where we received our education; it will always be a symbol of the lasting friendships formed and the experience gained.

With the Spirit of Understanding

We meet the challenge of education with the spirit of understanding. Young Vincent, the son of an average farmer, was not an unusually bright student, yet he made an exceptional scholar because of his will to understand. Earnestly resolving to be adequately fitted for his future duties, he worked his way through higher studies. In our class activities we dedicate ourselves to learning truth and Christian ideals in order that we, too, may understand how to apply these principles to our daily lives. With St. Vincent de Paul we put our trust in God and the spirit of understanding to meet the challenge of education.

"Employ study as a means to lift yourself to God."—St. Vincent de Paul

Senior sociology classes bring to light many obscure facts as they clarify well known ones. Betty Maroon and Jim Cobak listen attentively to Nancy Crowley's report on various means of helping children crippled since birth, or by polio, while Chuck West takes notes to be sure he won't forget how different braces operate. Leroy Smith, Shirley Courtney, Jerry Myers, and Marilyn Jost enjoy finding out how the exploration and the trade of centuries ago provided adventure and thrills unknown to us. Charts accounting for medieval activity help Mike May, Dorothy Donahue, Frank Duve, Dolores Ondas, and Mike Shields perceive what Sister Mercia tells about our ancestors.

We Strive to Understand...

Mr. Fred Sparks, foreign correspondent and syndicated columnist for many newspapers throughout the United States, speaks to the student body on "The Crisis in Korea." During the question-answer period following Mr. Sparks' enlightening talk Tom Strauss questions him. Studying history of European nations gives members of the world history class greater understanding of modern events. Bernard Loell, Larry Ball, and Robert Brizes examine Italian architecture while Margaret Krause and Bernadette Slaven study pictures of renowned cathedrals and heroes. Barbara Sullivan and Michael Cummins try on a kimono of Chinese origin as others compare notes on life abroad.

...The World and Its Problems

The World Is All of Us...

With the United Nations flag providing the background, members of the American history class become United Nations delegates to the Security Council. The small flags representing various countries were made by Shirley Richardson and Ann Crobarger. The session at which members discussed the acceptance of Communist China into the U. N. was held to mark the observance of U. N. week. Mike Hayden as the Russian delegate is expressing his views on the subject while Dick Giffels as Warren Austin look interested. Don Wood, Phil Pritt, Dick Reiheld, and Joe La Monica complete the council.

KEY TO SUCCESS

Studying vocations is the special project of freshman civics classes. The first step, a survey of the occupational field, is followed by a study of the student himself and his desired career. The last step is a comparison of the student's abilities with the requirements for his preferred occupation. Sister Joseph explains working conditions and procedure in obtaining a job, as Bill McFadden points out the many existing careers and the ones available to youth. This is one of many charts to help students in vocational studies. Pat Gesler and Charles Smith are ready to help Bill with the questions of the class.

Honor Students

Character, scholarship, leadership, and service are characteristic of the juniors and seniors who are members of the National Honor Society. Each nominee for the society is judged on these four points before he is eligible for membership. The society members can be found early in September busily cutting paper shamrocks for the society's annual activity — Friendship Day. On this day students autograph each other's shamrocks, which have been purchased from N.H.S. members. In October the tide turns from green to red for the Red Feather Community Chest Drive. Both the high school and the grade school participate in this fund-raising campaign. During the year the society considers many projects to utilize the proceeds from Friendship Day. This year the members decided upon sending a Care package to war-torn Europe and contributing a large patron fee to the 1951 Shamrock. The members search for talent in the school during the fall and exhibit their findings in a talent show, the feature assembly of February. Finally all N.H.S. grads look proudly upon the Society's golden seal on their diplomas. A seal which recognizes and commends their scholarship, leadership, character, and service to mankind.

Juniors solemnly observe president Mary Jean Wozniak as she lights the four candles representing the ideals of the National Honor Society in the initiation ceremony. Row 1 — P. Mills, R. Quinn, M. Dorothy Leyden inscribes the presentation in the school's gift from the N. H. S. Seated are Phyllis Jost, Norma Tilly, Barb Menches, Carole Lucas, Lillian Shank and Helen Conlin. Standing are Jo-Ann Collins, Joan Latham, Sister Loretta, Karen Oberdoerster, Betty DiLauro, Tom Hillery, Ken Lauck, Tom Gillen, Bill Palazzo, Larry Kovalcik, Paul Gill, Joan May. Members consider buying a crucifix for the auditorium as Joe Gluhman writes one of the addresses on the board. Studying catalogues are Pat Philbin, Jim Kilway, Margie Shannon, Pat Laughlin, George Seikel, Steve Lasko, Joe Weber, Marianne McElligott, Marilyn Roth, Ann Shircliff, Carole Bell, Tom Horning. This was one of the projects of the N.H.S. for 1951.

Concentration Penetrates...

BRAIN TAXATION

Joan Stefan reads instructions to confused Joan Latham in Chemistry. Don Taggart concentrates on hitting the funnel as Jim Sudman is quiz-zically amused. Busily working at the table is Dick Gmerek preparing the titration experiment.

How much does air weigh? Four physics students answer this question via experiment. After weighing an air-filled can, they exhaust the air and weigh the empty can. Jim Kilway and Tom Horning look on as Skippy Brandt checks the gauge. George Seikel finds the experiment in his book just to make sure!

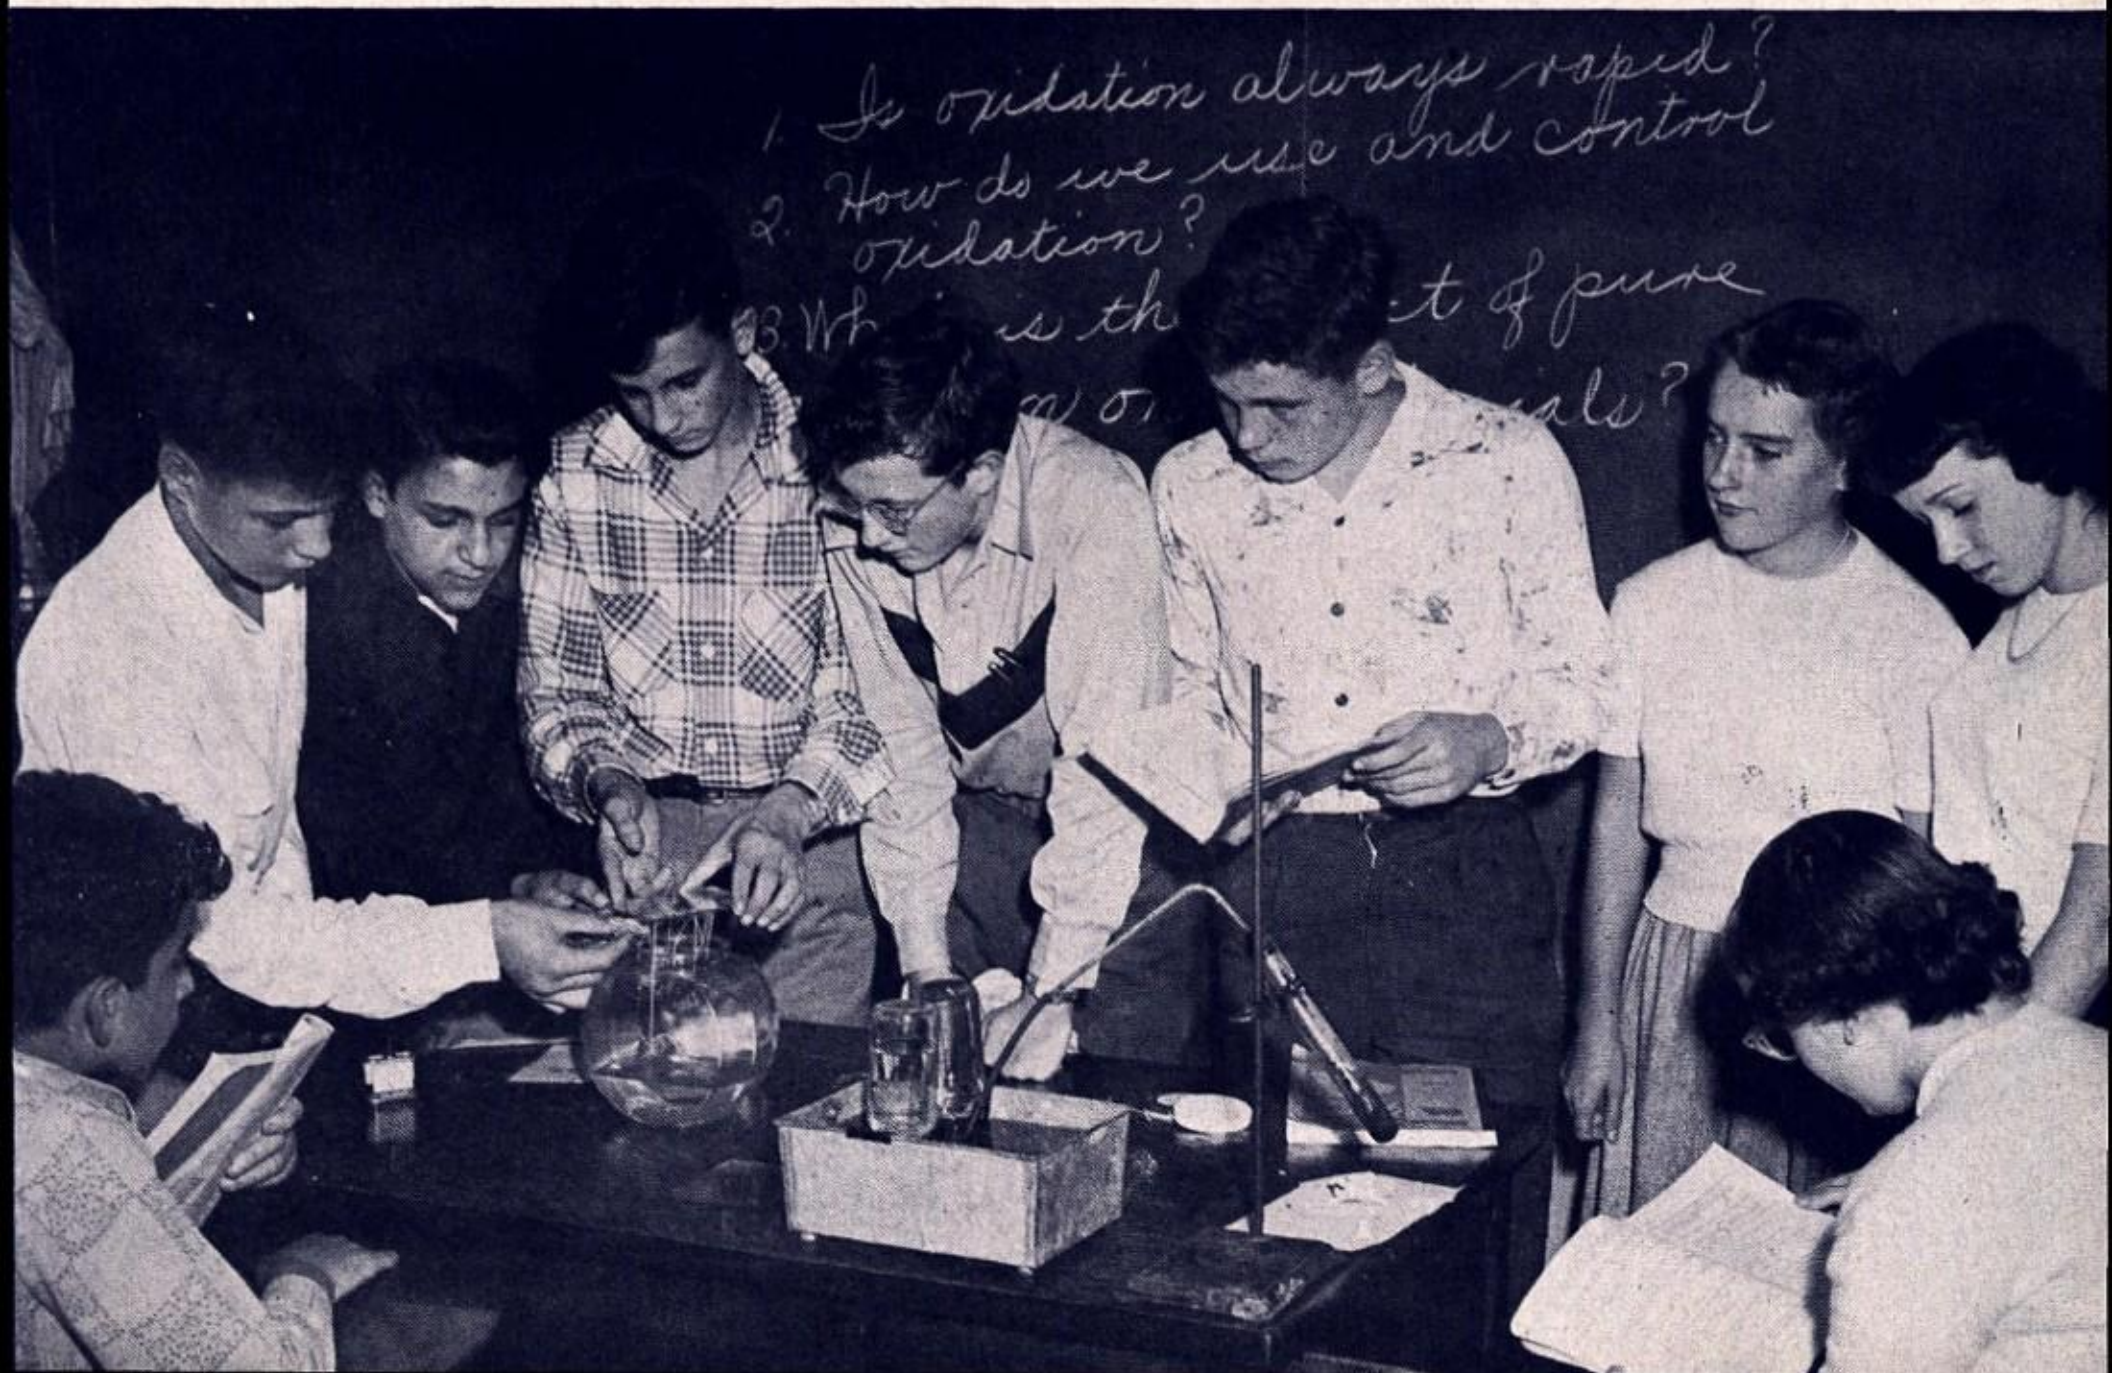

GENIUS AT WORK

"At last I've found it. Now, what is it?" exclaims an attentive sophomore. With microscopes and specimens, biology students observe the tiniest forms of life. General science pupils study oxidation. Nick Codispoti observes as Tom Baldacci, Gene Salem, Martin Powers, and Jim Loftus demonstrate slow oxidation and Gary Edwards notes results. Janet Darkow is interested as Lucille Stampfli and Carol Kaufman match conclusions on the experiment.

...The Truths of Science

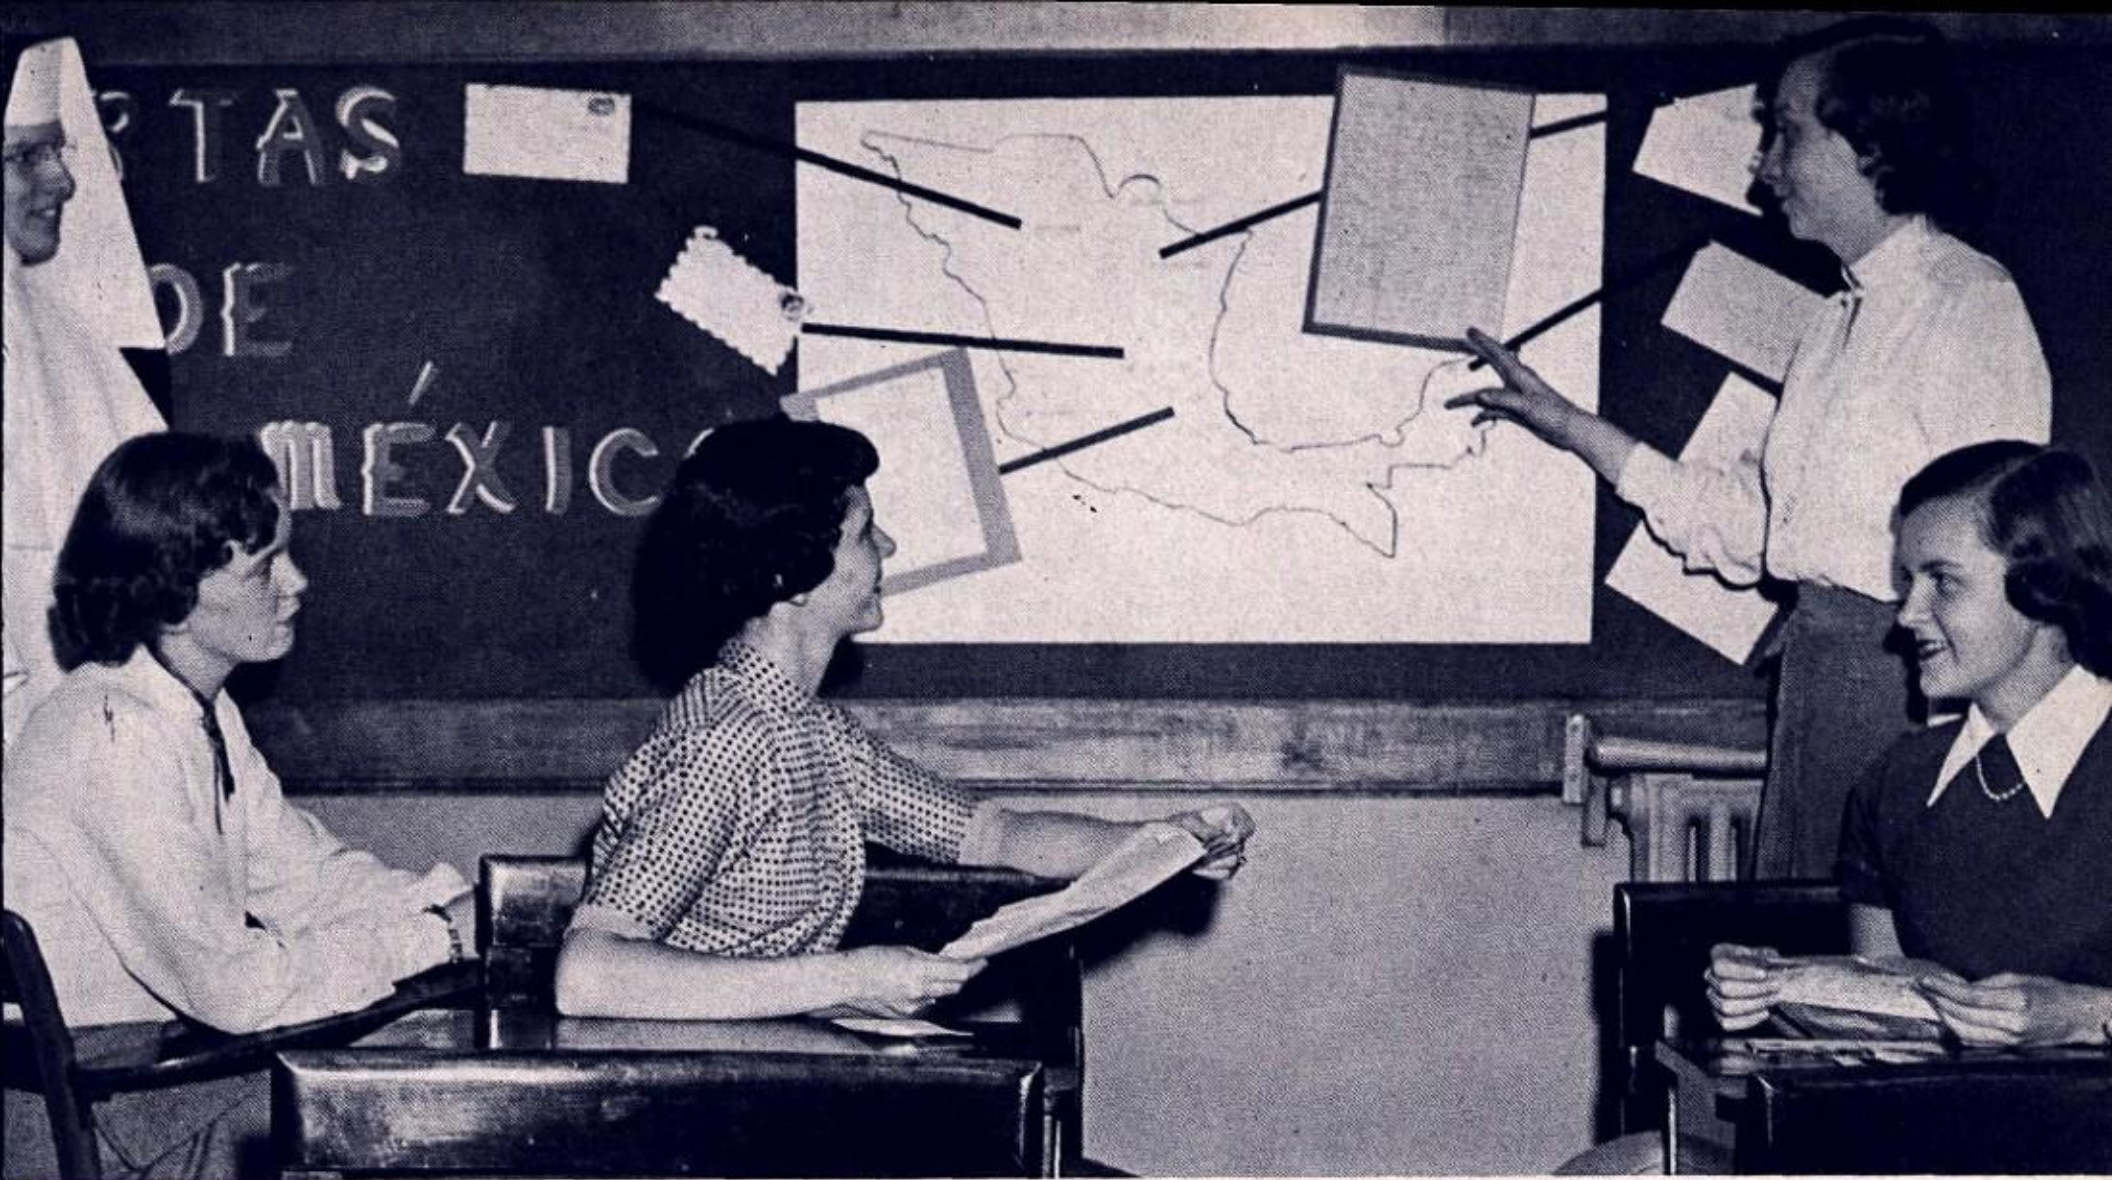

Projects Advance Health

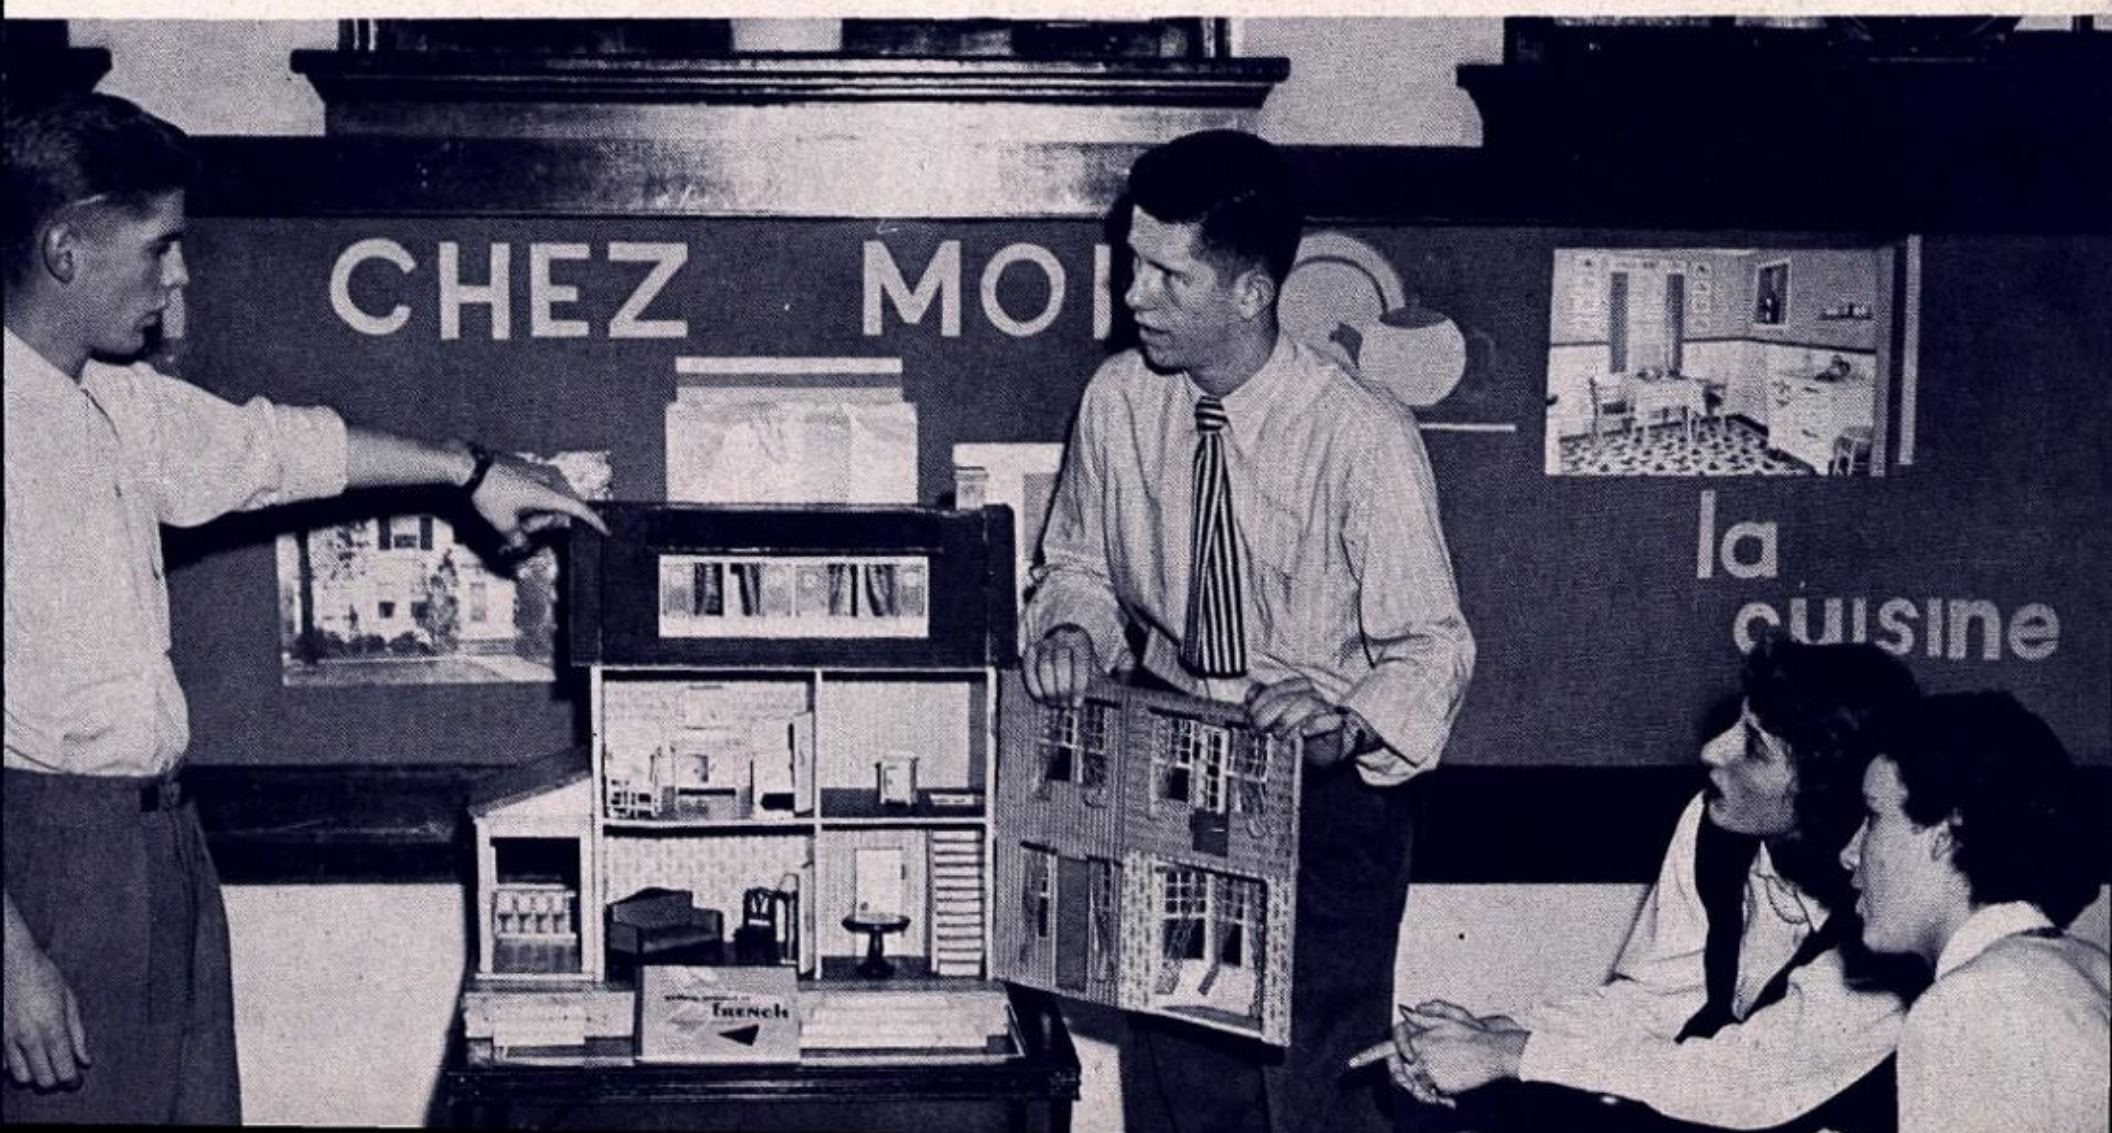

Ray Bebb holds his Biology project while Joan Starner asks, "How did you ever do it?" Barb Moffitt, Don Taggart and Catherine Pickett admire exhibited plaques. "Buzz-z." There's that tone again. Joe Gombar's lifted finger reveals his hearing abilities to Mrs. McDermott, St. Vincent alumna, who is now a registered nurse. At the audiometer set Shirley Riley, Jim Cookro, Joan Colant, Erwin Kraker, and Mary Lou Bauer wait their turns. The test is part of a health program each year.

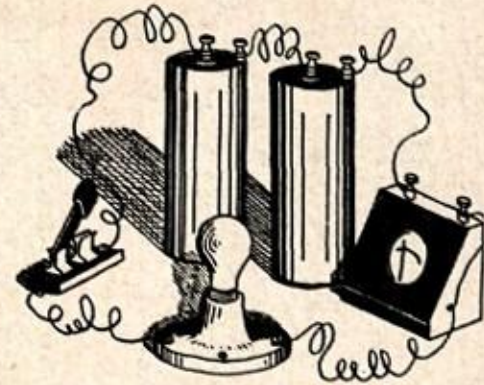

Languages Promote Friendship

Sister Vincentia, Dorothy Scholl, and Helen Conlin examine Marilyn Roth's letter from her Spanish pen pal, while Marianne McElligott is amused by her letter.

Jack Kunkler and Dave Towell explain in French the parts of the house to Barbara Gombar and Marie Selby, who are surprised to find the kitchen upstairs.

Future Wage-Earners Learn Trades

THIS'LL SHOCK YOU

Studying the complexities of the neon light, are machines students Bill Stewart, Berny Miller, and Joe Heaton. Electricity is a phase of machines studied in the second semester. Basic mechanical fundamentals and their applications are learned thoroughly. One of the most interesting studies made is that of the automobile in addition to aircraft and Diesel power plants.

Home planning is an essential item in mechanical drawing. Sister Aquinas explains a few details, as Ken Willett, Bob Schlabig, Ronald Kayatin, and Danny Weirtz study the model of a house. In the background are many house designs done by the students themselves. Mechanical drawing develops the creative abilities of those interested in scales, lines, and angles.

Future Homemakers Learn Thrift

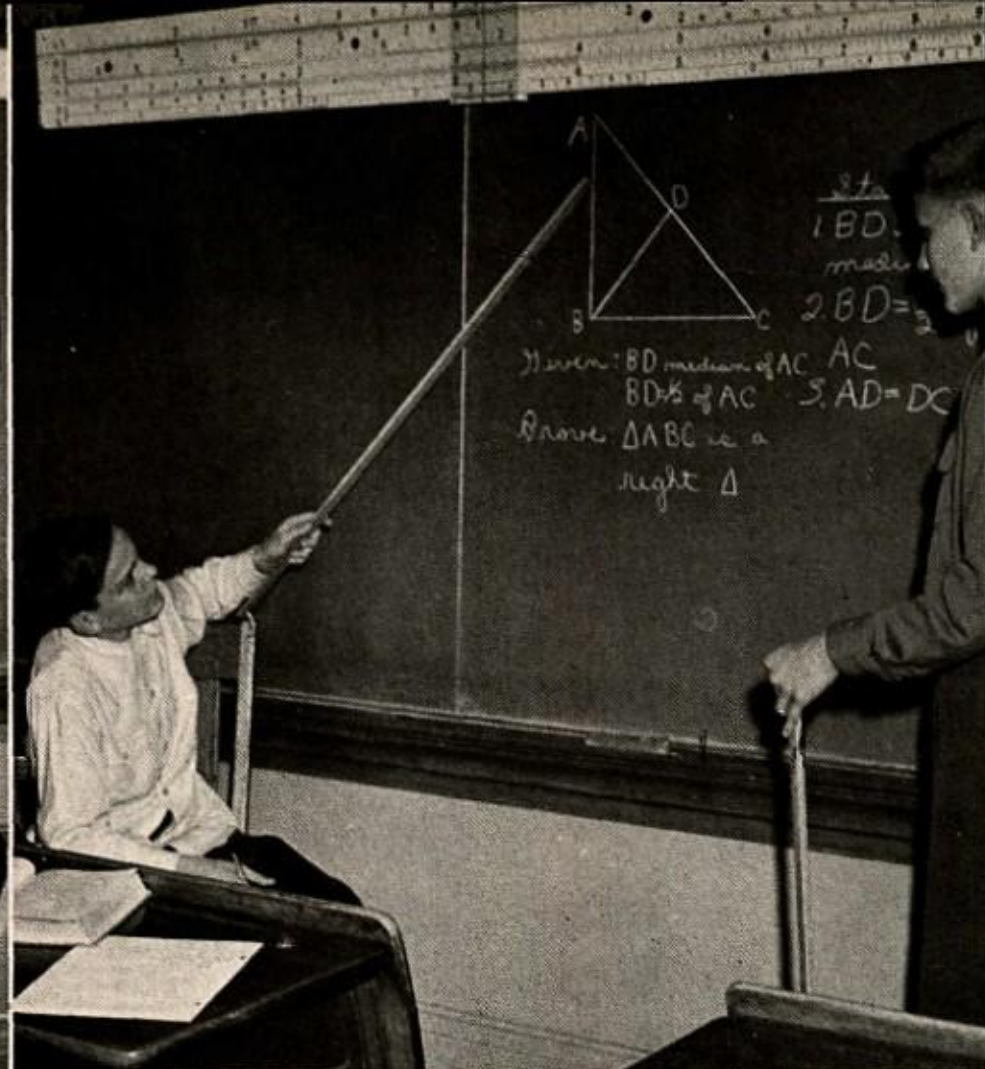

NIMBLE THIMBLES

Girls of Sister Dominica's home ec class learned that the old saying, "As you sew, so shall you rip" was very true. Mary Jane Sprain, Joan Labbe, and Geraldine Hermann are busy basting and pinning their skirts at the table as Pat Cook rummages for more material in the cupboard. At the sewing machines Rita Hibinger's formal and Joan May's pajamas are beginning to take shape.

Time and hard work finally paid off for the girls as they model the fruits of their labors. Mary Jane Sprain, Pat Cook, and Helen Schlosser admire Rita Hibinger's formal, Geraldine Hermann's skirt and weskit, and Joan Labbe's skirt. Joan May displays her new pajamas as she calls attention to the neat hem on Joan's skirt to Mary Ann Shields and Theresa Brandt.

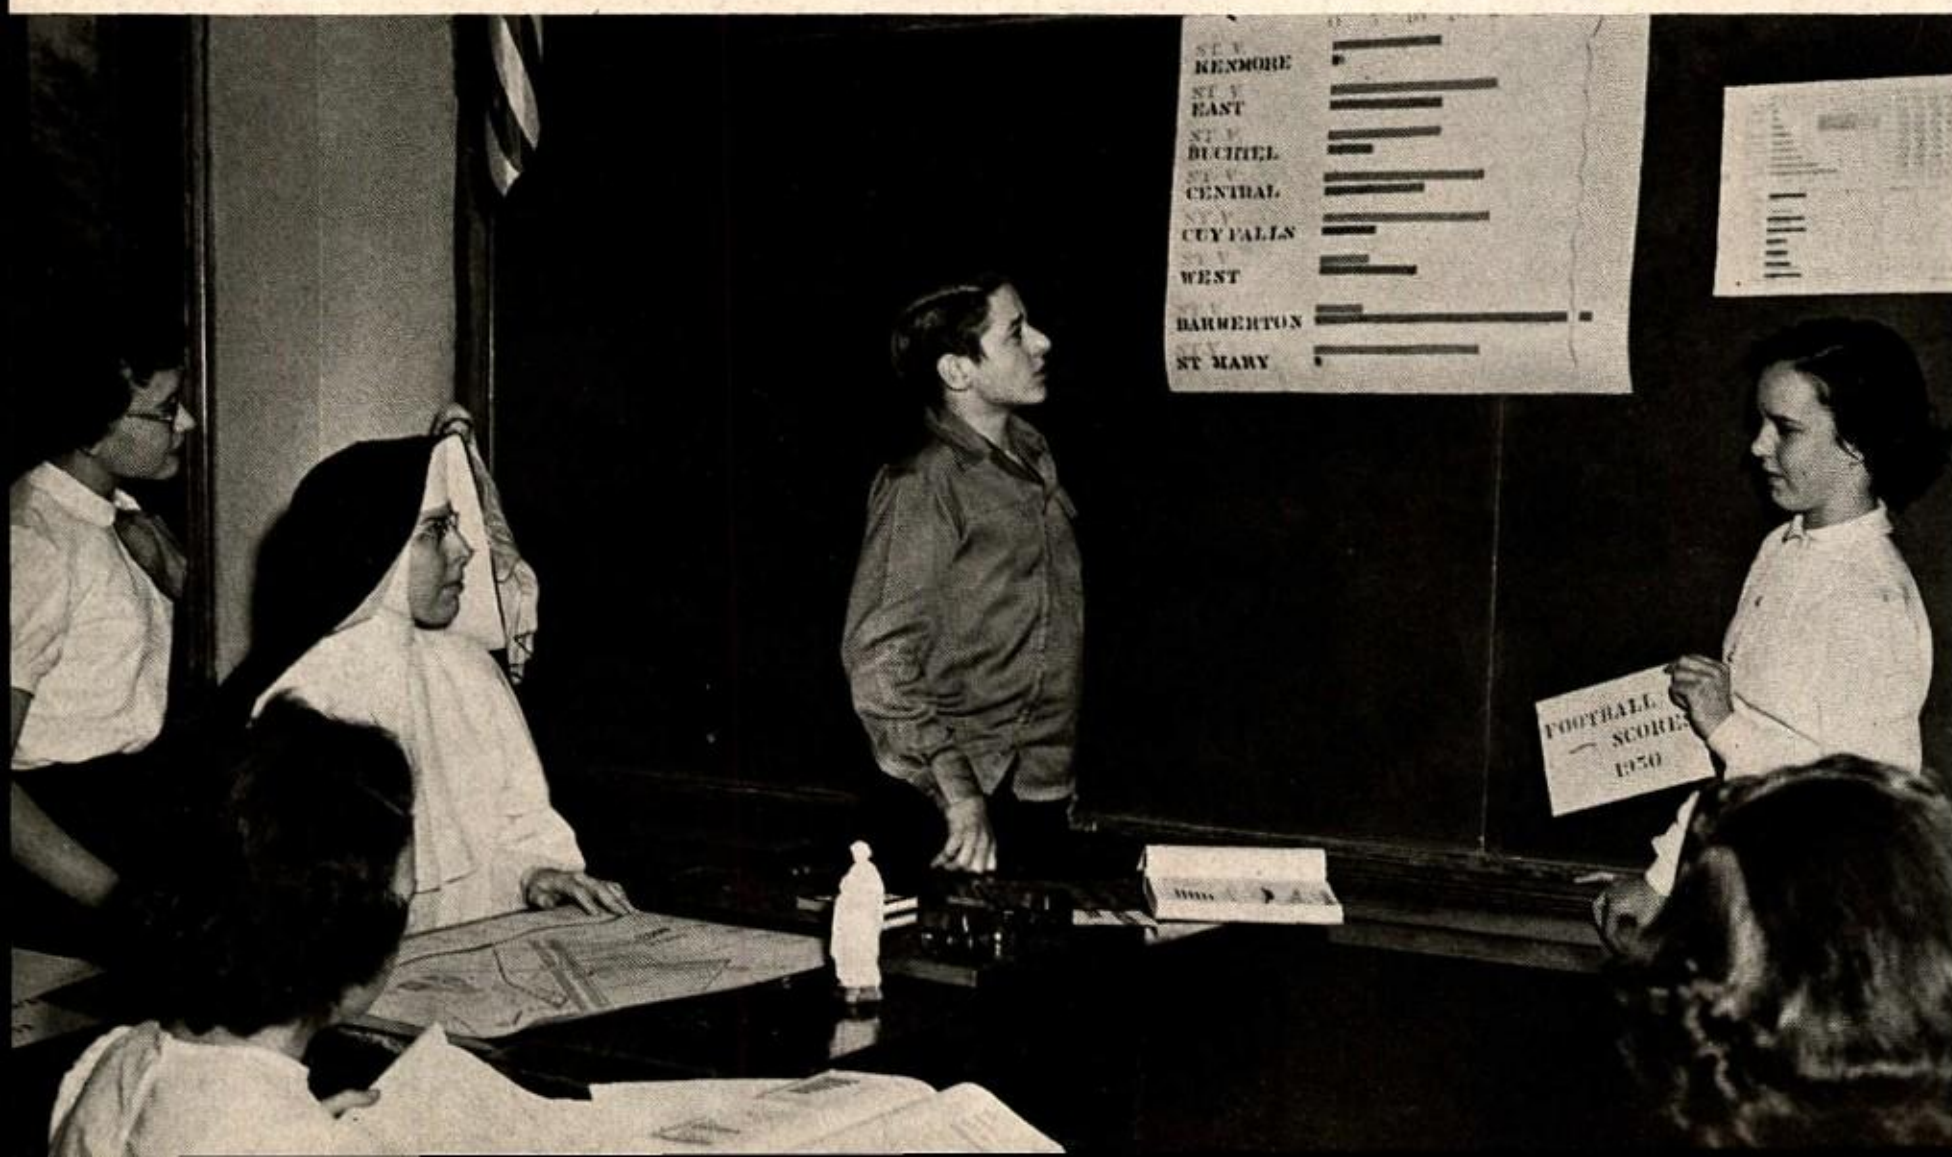

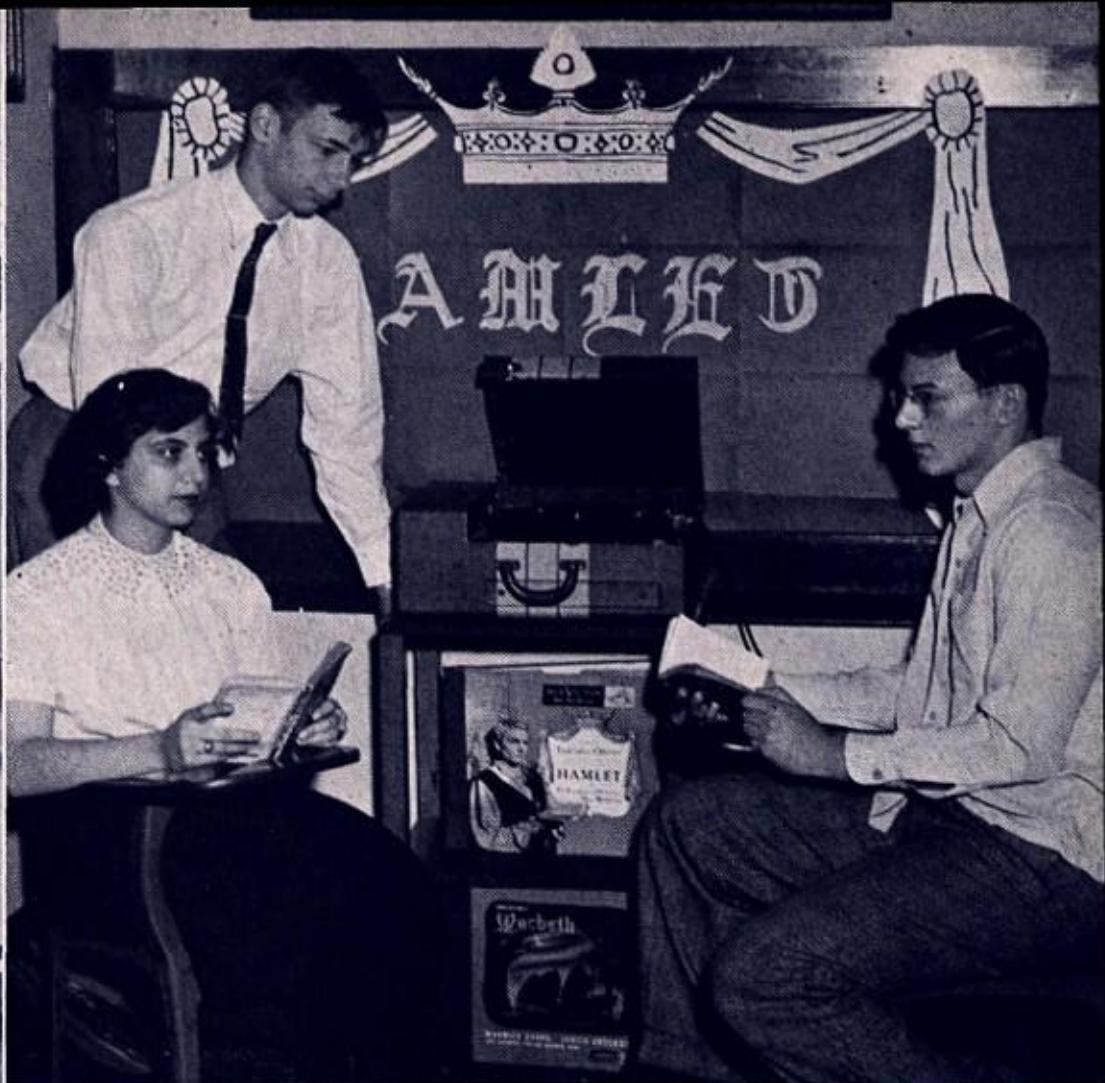

Active Participation . . .

It was arithmetic in grade school. Now in high school it is algebra, geometry and general math. Don May, Bill Palazzo, Jim Censky and Joe La-Monica, with Sister Marie's aid, are multiplying numerical values with the help of slide rules. This is a part of the algebra course taken by juniors. Eddie Dannemiller and Jim Strumi are proving geometrically that the triangle has a 90° angle. A graph showing the results of Saint Vincent's 1950 football season is analyzed by Dave Scheatzle while Mary Ann Prochnow, Connie Sear, Jackie Ringlein, and Betty Monzo mentally compare notes. This general math class, directed by Sister Marijane, is offered to freshmen.

... Stimulates Outside Interests

ness as they listen to a recording from Shakespeare's Hamlet. Below: Sister Florence, Gerry Schafer, Dorothy Donahue, Margie Elmauer, Janet Mickel, Catherine Crowley, and Marilyn Stimler congratulate Betty Monzo as she admires the autographed football awarded her for writing the winning Fun vs. Vandalism theme.

Eager Minds Seek . . .

ROMANI

Sister Raphael and the school library provide research material for us of St. Vincent's. Terry Horrigan sees his answers in the pamphlet file, while the card catalogue seems to satisfy Joan Cutrone and Marie Klocker. Wally Witwer, Mike May, Don May, Joe May, Brian Scott record the information they have found. Below: Ed Pramuk explains to Joan Seigman, Dolores Connavo, and Howard Mehigan how interdependent languages are. Are there Latin Shmoos, too?

Greater Understanding

MISSIONERS

Adeline Loell and Sister Leo look over Washington's typewriter portrait for a display while Norma Tilly picks out a companion design. Barb Menches completes old-English lettering and Karen Oberdoerster prepares a carbon cut. Philip Pritt distributes membership emblems for the missions to the high ranking homerooms while Ronald Sutterly and Carolyn Seikel lend a helping hand. Ann Dennis proudly puts a cross on her homeroom door as Lillian Fruscella looks on.

Physical Education Teaches Sportsmanship

Boys Lean Backwards to Learn

With the Spirit of Organization

We meet the challenge of leadership with the spirit of organization. When St. Vincent found work to be done, he did it with the means at hand. If organization were needed, he organized! The results of his efforts were evident in the success of hospitals, of lay and religious organizations — a lasting memorial to his leadership. The need for Christian apostles in the world spurs us on to develop our latent power of leadership by planning a varied program of school activities. Under the guidance of administration and faculty, juniors and seniors lead freshmen and sophomores in facing the challenge of leadership with the spirit of organization.

... Help Us Meet the Challenge

Monsignor Conry presents a farewell gift to one of the graduating seniors. His remembrance, a prayer book, is symbolic of the guidance and inspiration that he has given to us in our years at St. Vincent. As our spiritual adviser, especially in our senior year, he has instilled in our hearts a love of the ideals and aims which are helping us to meet the challenge of today with the spirit of St. Vincent de Paul.

The guiding hand during our four years at St. Vincent has been the understanding, helpfulness, and kindness of the administration and faculty. Edward F. Hoban, Bishop of Cleveland and spiritual leader of all parochial schools of the diocese, is assisted by Dr. Clarence Elwell, Superintendent of Diocesan Schools. Supervising our school activities is Msgr. Edward B. Conry, Dean of the Akron Deanery and pastor of St. Vincent Church. Father Padvá, Father Cosgrove, and Father Corrigan assist in the fulfillment of Parish duties. Superior of Dominican sisters at St. Vincent and principal of the school is Sister M. Bernice, O. P. From the athletic angle, Mr. Wentz and Mr. Malagio train and direct the boys in the various sports while Mrs. Florin supervises the girls' physical education. Also giving their services are Mrs. Witt, English teacher, and Mr. Marvin, band director.

FORMAL SOLEMNITY . . .

"Thank you, Monsignor," smiles Beatrice Humphrey as she accepts her senior class ring from Monsignor Conry. Senior class president, Tom Hillery, and vice-president, Barbara Gibson, are helping Monsignor distribute the rings which serve as symbols of our loyalty to our Alma Mater. Server, Joe Scalia watches the impressive ceremony, anticipating next year when he will receive his ring.

Ring Ceremony Arouses Sentiment and Smiles

. . . CANDID SMILES

"Ohhhhh!" exclaims Dorothy Scholl in approval of the new senior rings. Norma Tilly and Mary Jean Wozniak exchange admiring glances while they wonder how they ever managed to wait so long for their shiny possessions. "Why, it's just like mine," says Joan Slivka as she appreciatively surveys Judy Riedel's gold and onyx treasure. One hundred sixteen seniors received rings.

FRESHMEN ENTER . . .

Eager and happy minds ponder weighty entrance exams as Sister Bernice watchfully guides and assists them. Green, but willing, Letizia Brunamonti and Paul Stuhldreher exemplified our spirit and enthusiasm as freshmen. No one knew what the future might hold, but we were anxious to accept whatever challenges were presented by high school.

Entrance Tests Change to College Bulletins

. . . SENIORS PART

Four years have slipped into the past since we seniors, wide-eyed and wondering, first entered the halls of Saint Vincent. Paul and Letizia are again faced with new problems and greater responsibilities. By developing character and maturity in us, these four years at Saint Vincent have laid a firm foundation on which we can build our future lives, for the challenges of a modern world are now to be met.

Senior Officers Plan Strategy

To be a senior is the goal of every underclassman—the senior class is their ideal and envy, the culmination of their school career. Privileges anticipated by freshmen, sophomores, and juniors, include occupying first rows at assembly and at Mass, economy size lockers, senior class day, wearing class rings, and graduation. These four representatives of the graduating class of 1951, Thomas Hillery, President; Lillian Shank, Secretary; Barbara Gibson, Vice President; and Thomas Gillen, Treasurer, have attained the most honored positions — senior class officers. As leaders, they realize the responsibilities and obligations they have to meet, as well as the privileges ascribed to their class. As heads of fourth year students they must plan and organize student activities ranging from rings, pictures, and graduation, to the Shamrock, the Vincentian, and dances.

The spirit of St. Vincent never dies, but is handed down from class to class. We, the seniors, are proud to leave with the underclassmen the knowledge and understanding that have made our stay at St. Vincent so profitable. As seniors Carl Dangel and Pat Mellody read commencement programs in anticipation of their departure, the light of St. Vincent is kindled by Joe Scalia and John Bauman. The gold crucifix held by Jerry Stitz symbolizes the rich religious background our St. Vincent education has afforded. We look to our successors for the continuance of these high ideals.

Communion Unites Grads for Challenge

The heart of the graduation Mass, is the reception of Christ in the Holy Eucharist. The keynote of our four years at Saint Vincent is struck as Monsignor Conry distributes Communion to these three graduates. Father Cosgrove and Father Corrigan reflect the dignity of the occasion, as they stand ready to assist Monsignor. Reminiscent of the many times that we trudged to Mass during October, Lent, May, and first Friday, this occasion is the last time we gather as a class to receive the blessings bestowed on us by this sacrifice. Fortified with the Christian principles learned at St. Vincent, we are prepared to conquer the obstacles that may bar our path to happiness. When Mass is over, students doff their caps and gowns and go out to the annual class breakfast.

Diplomas Mark Finish For Seniors

With the bishop reigning supreme, each member of the 1950 class receives a two-fold honor in accepting his diploma and kissing the bishop's ring. Typical of the spirit of the graduating class is Frank Robinson, receiving a diploma from Bishop Hoban, as he kneels to kiss the sacred ring. This is one of the most memorable parts of the graduation ceremony. Monsignor Conry calls the name of each student of the class as he steps forward to receive his diploma. Father Cosgrove and Father Corrigan assist the Bishop. The senior class of 1951 looks forward to its graduation with all the happiness and excitement that befit the conclusion of high school and the commencement of a new and promising life. It is our aim to spread the spirit of St. Vincent to all we meet.

As our third year progresses we discover just what it means to be upperclassmen. Responsibilities will be placed on our shoulders more than ever before. We have great obstacles to surmount in American history, advanced algebra, shorthand, chemistry and French; all must be mastered. With the coming of December's snow we expect to see, dotting the halls, girls in new white sweaters bearing numerals "52". Shortly before we ring in the New Year we will find the holiday spirit characterized by the Christmas Formal, an annual project carried out by our junior class. Will our rings be green, blue, red, gold, black or silver? This question will have to be discussed before orders are placed. Our first Prom will climax all.

Sideri, Sister Dominica.

Right at the top we find the junior girls of homeroom 104 working up the spirit necessary for their next year's senior activities. They claimed 100% in the Red Feather Campaign and walked away with second place honors in the annual mission contributions to the Society of the Propagation of the Faith. The participation and co-operation of the girls were expressed in the lively cheer rally given for the basketball game with Canton Central Catholic. The refreshments for the Christmas formal and for the Junior-Senior

Prom were the results of the girls' hard work and good taste. How appropriate that their homeroom should be the home economics laboratory! These girls worked on the publicity and decoration committees for the two formals of the year, also. Thus, we see that talent and willingness to work are well represented in the junior girls of this year. The success of the Christmas play was also effected by their activity. Could it be that Sister Dominica has provided the inspiration? We say, "Keep up the good work."

Three down, one to go. "Nimble fingers"—that's the name of the girls of 204. The class made string rosaries as their contribution to the missions. "Make others happy and you'll make yourself happy." That was the motto. The girls filled a basket with canned food and gave it to some needy family. Also, as their good deed for the Christmas season, the class dug deep into pockets and scraped up a fifteen dollar patron fee. A spiritual light was cast on their activities when they each made posters of the Holy Ghost. Some girls took part in preparing for the Christmas Formal by bringing in lights and ornaments, and others cut snowflakes of every size and shape. The results were a gaily decorated gym. The fun over, all knuckled down to serious work. But then interwoven, of course, were the basketball games. The days passed quickly with Easter, retreat, and the baseball season. Besides enjoying all these activities, the highlight was the prom. It has been great fun but with eagerness they anxiously look forward to "The Big Year."

In homeroom 109 there are just 55 healthy, regular American boys working together as a team. The daily class is led by class officers who act as co-captains. The officers take complete charge of all classroom activities under the supervision of Sister Benita. The teamwork of the boys is expressed through their success in all the projects they have undertaken. Their main objective of the year is based on the idea of Catholic Action. Carrying out this plan, they are taking part in a Christopher campaign against secularism, promoted by the Shield. This program consists of writing descriptions giving examples of how Catholic youth can help offset the influence of secularism. The best articles will be selected for a fictional feature column in the Shield. Their team spirit is steadily progressing through a 100% in the Red Feather Campaign. This group has the distinction of being the first class to raise almost three times the customary homeroom patron fee. These factors have helped to make 109 click as a well-rounded team, and develop as Catholic gentlemen.

Homeroom 105 has the distinction of being the only mixed junior class. Some of the many outstanding personalities include two of the cheerleaders, Paul Gill and Jerry May. Number one scholar of all the juniors, "Moose" Reiheld, and a member of the Junior Town Meeting team, James Censky, are also numbered among the boys. Some bright spots are "Chick" Kormanik's cowboy boots and that flashy yellow corduroy shirt of Paul Slaven's. Ray Bebb has faithfully taken care of the flag each morning and night.

There's never a dull moment when Marian Huber, the worry-wart, or Erv Kraker and his famous dill pickles are around. Showing musical talent are Patty Kutsko, in the Glee Club, and Barb Royer and John Lambes in the Band. Some of the girls who render their services are Sister Bernard's helpers in the library and Marjorie Mehigan, Carol Conway, Ann Donahue, Nancy Schrady, Joanie Starner, "Bobbie" Moffitt, and "Tibby" Kidder, future members of the year book staff who are working on copy.

With the Spirit of Friendliness

We meet the challenge of Christian living with the spirit of friendliness. While spreading his doctrine of charity and Christian principles, St. Vincent was called upon to convert a half-pagan, half-Christian world. Prompted by a love of God and a sense of brotherhood, he held out to the people a light of truth, reassuring and guiding them. He had a faith in his fellow men and saw good even in the worst of them. Encouraged by his example, we, too, endeavor to spread friendliness and Christian brotherhood. In school activities, at dances and social events of the year, we have ample opportunity to develop in a friendly atmosphere to meet the challenge of Christian living.

"Let us always act in the spirit of candor and sincerity." —St. Vincent de Paul

Schedules Map Fresh Start

These freshies have received their schedules which seem more like puzzles to them. "Do we go to homeroom between periods?" "How do I get to this class?" Questions fly at Sister Imelda as she tries to help these confused boys. They may wander around awhile but soon they'll catch on. Dancing with a broom isn't exactly Don Sander's idea of getting acquainted but it's fun. The "freshie" Get Acquainted Dance has become an annual affair. Through playing games, dancing, and just being together, new and lasting friendships are made.

N. H. S. Helps Frosh Get Acquainted

Members of the National Honor Society held friendship day V's to start the school year right. Mary Rita Zarling laughed as she waited for Lucille Stampfli to sign hers. Mike Judge and Patricia Philbin traded autographs, while Barbara Sadowski and Mary Conlon made good use of their "desk" and Pat Gesseler looked for another "personality." Obliging Pat Rowman signed Mary Rita Zarling's V as Betty Monzo contemplated a plan for reaching her next class on time. An extra few minutes gave her time to plow through the crowds.

Shown making the decorations which transformed the gym for the "Witches' Whirl" are Gerry Schafer, Anastasia Scott, Margie Elmauer, Larry Barr, Tom Beiswenger, Tom Jesser, Tom Marshall, Donna Coudriet, and Pat McCafferty. Gerry and "Scotty" busily cut out letters while the others work on posters. Standing among the cornstalks are some of those who enjoyed the dance and music of Ross Halamay's orchestra. Tom Wozniak thinks the witch's hat is quite becoming to Pat Snyder while George Seikel offers Rita Hibinger a broom to examine. Connie Burleson and Frank McVann watch the proceedings.

Business Comes Before Pleasure

Goblins Fly At Witches' Whirl

Bewitched, bothered and bewildered is Barbara Sullivan as she exclaims over the live cat displayed by Tom Horning at the sophomore's Halloween Dance. The jack o' lantern scarecrow in the background smiles his everlasting approval on the two amid the cornstalks. Scenes such as this were to be seen in every corner of the gym which was decorated in true harvest atmosphere. The black cat, typical of Halloween, was a source of astonishment to most of the students at the dance. An old witch, twelve feet in height, gazed down on the dancers as ghosts and goblins met at the windows and on the walls. Traditional cider and doughnuts were served.

Recreation Becomes The Christian Life

The homey scene at the Christmas window was the center of attraction at the "Snowflake Fantasy." Inside are Marie Raasch and Frank Volpe as they exchange gaily wrapped Christmas presents. The lighted tree and red brick fireplace add just the right touch. Outside the window were life-sized carolers as they stood with their song-books held tightly in typical caroler fashion.

Christmas trees in every corner and glistening snowflakes on the walls transformed the gym into the holiday spirit. Drawing exclamations at one end of the gym was a huge white fir tree with brightly colored lights. During the intermission refreshments consisting of cake and punch were served. Bob Cole and his orchestra supplied the dance music for the gala event.

Holiday Formal Puts Us In The Spirit

Graydon Kouri and Joan Kirk admire the Christmas tree as Ann Donahue and Louie Baldacci chat about other decorations. Watching as Don May gives a helping hand to "Tibby" Kidder are Margie Mehigan and Johnny Raub. Above: Jane Walter and Tom Walter stand amidst the carolers while Rosemary D'Angelo and Jim Dierker, in a pensive mood, glance at the whirl of dancing couples.

"Come And Trip It As You Go

Strains of soft dance music, spring eyelet, net, and organdy, immaculately white dinner jackets, and multi-colored corsages characterized the Junior-Senior Prom. Denny Thompson and his orchestra played old favorites, as well as new, to add to the festive night. Small crepe paper flowers peeked from yellow window boxes on the garden balcony. A riot of color was provided by the swirling gowns of the girls. Gathered at candlelit tables during intermission, Marie Selby, Jim Hoying, Joan Labbe, and Jack Prarat were served cake and punch by Jim Smith. Other merrymakers Dot Leyden, Joellen Wargo, Pat Laughlin, Larry Savacool, Tom Hillery, Ann Shircliff and Jack Kunkler engaged in deep conversation. Our Lady was enthroned in a tall white trellis gaily bedecked with flowers and fern. The Queen of Heaven was crowned Queen of May by Jeanne Hill, whose escort was Jack Gruska. Forming the Blessed Virgin's court were Pat Bayne, Pat Denholm, Angeline La Penna, Martha Thome, and Rosie Whitman. Strains of

"Mother Beloved," "Bring Flowers of the Rarest," and our Alma Mater gave the atmosphere. This was a moment of the evening—the seniors last school dance! Doris Jane Seikel, Jim Kilway, Nelda Coyle and Bill Semonin couldn't resist the invitation of an old-fashioned garden with pond and benches, and took time out to enjoy it.

They heard them say, "Come to the Mardi Gras." And come to the Mardi Gras they did. Outside this gay cafe we see J. Smith, A. Dempsey, D. Caporaletti, R. Giffels, R. Reiheld, and S. Meadows. Hat-check girl, Barbara Gibson waits patiently as "elderly" Paul Slaven and Chinaman Joe Weibel remove their wallets from their coats before checking them.

CLOWNING . . .

Mardi Gras

"Le Cafe" provides refreshments for the gay throng. P. Philbin, M. E. Curtis, W. Witwer, and P. Philbin patiently await their order. "Kukla's here, but where are Fran and Ollie?" inquire E. Dettling, K. Bell, and E. Shaeffer. J. Wargo, however, refuses to tell. Convicts and clowns join hands to the lively notes of the Mexican hat dance in which everyone participates.

"The Play's The Thing . . .

MASK CREW

Opening night excitement invades the Saint Vincent backstage as members of the stage crew make last minute preparations. Donna Coudriet takes time out from her fast-moving job as property girl to help announcer Joe Weibel check his script. Busy Dorothy Donahue stacks a basket with firewood, while Rita Tersigni gets ready to place candlesticks on the table. Auggie Fields and Sonny Metker are sure that the blue spotlight will add the proper atmosphere, and Barb Gombar surveys the group.

LITTLE WOMEN

Hanna, the March family's maid, explains how she "just bumped into the second best set of China." Listening to her apology are John Messmore as Mr. Lawrence and Richard Theis as the boy down the road. Doris Seikel as "Meg," the oldest daughter, agrees with her sisters, Marjorie Wozniak, "Amy"; Mary Jean Wozniak, "Beth"; and Kathleen Doran, "Jo"; that there "Really was a crash." And Pat Laughlin as "Marmee" seems worried.

Wherein We Find Enjoyment"

"Thanksgiving a la Carte" typifies the spirit of a high school crowd who faithfully follows its team. Dave Towell as a truck driver cries out for his usual "cup of java and coupl'a sinkers." "Stella," Dorothy Leyden smiles as she serves her customers while "Tony," Tom Strauss, is bemoaning his fate of not being able to attend the game. "Pop," Joe Gluhman, and the rest of the crowd including cheerleaders Helen Conlin and Toni Lukacik, and rooters Jim Boles and Joe Metzger helped to make for a happy ending.

"WHAT'LL IT BE?"

"GIDDYUP!"

"Crank up the jalopy and let's head for the game," cries Jim Hebert while Mark Shank hints that it's past time to leave. This scene takes place at the pep rally given by the boys of 108 for the St. Vincent-Cuyahoga Falls football game. Blake Cullen sounds the horn, and Larry Ciarrochi, Joe Cvitkovich, and Larry Barr seem to be interested in the direction of Green Street Field.

The members of the O. B. E. are looking toward the future to see what it holds for them in the business world. Presiding over this club is Joe Sapp. The other officers are Mary Ann Plazek, Secretary, and Beatrice Humphrey, Treasurer. The O. B. E. studies many aspects of business.

Home Ec Club Serves Luncheon

Coeline Delagrange pours punch for Tom Hillery as Larry Hamlin reaches for a sandwich from Nancy Schrady's tray. Tom Gillen is just busy eating. The luncheon, consisting of "sloppy-joes", baked beans, potato chips, relishes, punch, and dessert, was the Home Economics Club's contribution to the yearbook for seniors who fulfilled their pledges on time. Junior girls showed their ingenuity by making candle stars and stick men.

Color expert Mr. Slivka explains to Chem-Phy members how varied lighting affects color values. Chemistry, physics, and machines students planned the year's program at monthly meetings. Highlighting the events was a trip to Akron University to hear Dr. Seeger's lecture on "Chemistry as a Vocation." Dr. Davidson, former research scientist at Oak Ridge, Tennessee, answered questions on atomic energy at the January meeting.

Members of the Spanish Club discover new interests by writing to South American pen pals. At bi-monthly meetings, students learned about the customs of Spanish speaking countries. French Club members model their creations for "Les Catherinettes" hat contest. Students heard talks by several speakers on French customs at their monthly meetings. The main event of the year for both clubs was the sponsoring of the Mardi Gras Dance.

Training in and appreciation of music have important places in St. Vincent's study program. The harmonious blending of various voice tones has resulted each year from the efforts of the Glee Club under the guidance of Sister Aloysius. Sacred seasonal hymns as sung in Church and at school programs by the Glee Club are especially captivating and inspiring to the audiences. Pat Kutsko provides piano accompaniment for Rosemary Quinn, Pat Rowe, Mary Jane Sprain, Pat Royer, Sandra Brown, Marie Caliri, Mary Clare Beesing, and Gerry Herman. Sister Aloysius directs the club in developing voice quality, in choosing songs for special occasions, and rehearsing for big events.

...Perfect Performance

DOTS WITH DASH

Singer, dancer, instrumentalist, baton twirler and novelty actor lend their talents to the entertainment of the N.H.S. talent show. Margie Shannon gave a pantomime impersonation of Beatrice Kay's record "Hooray." Not even Dick Fabbro, Frank Duve, Bob Fabbro, and Nick Isaac, the "Polka Dots," and their music can take her mind off "the man in the little white coat." We, also, have the opportunity to know presently famous artists. After a special concert given to the entire student body David Rubinoff, the world-renowned violinist, complies with the wish of autograph-seekers Shirley Courtney, Larry Foore, Patty Bell, Don Rinella, and Donna Coudriet.

Vincentian

A GOOD ISSUE

MAY I QUOTE YOU?

Vincentian Keeps Us Informed

Vincentian co-editors smile as they glance over the latest edition. Joan May, feature editor, and Carole Bell and Jane Walter, the co-editors, laugh at previous trouble spots as they remind each other of the newspaper's silver anniversary. Comparing notes, the girls found that Vincentian circulation has quadrupled from the original five hundred in 1925 to its present two thousand. The newspaper has traveled to California, Florida, Illinois, and New York while in return, forty-five schools throughout the nation send newspapers to the Vincentian office.

The earliest Vincentian carried not only sports and student news, but also the poems and writings of the students. Sports scores, dances, school activities covered much of the paper just as it does now. Pictures in the early Vincentian were few and far between, and during the war days the paper served both as a year book and as a newspaper, carrying the picture of the senior class in the June edition. The present Vincentian is rated all American by the National Scholastic Press, and Medalist by the Columbia Scholastic Press. Quill and Scroll, an honorary society, gives it an International Honorary rating and the Catholic Press Association awards it with All Catholic. Left: Carole Lucas, photographer, calls for a smile as Lillian Shank holds a mysterious paper for Dick "Sherlock" Reiheld to inspect. Jim Wargo, Vincentian reporter covering the story, discovers that the paper is a story from the Vincentian morgue where dead news is kept.

NO MISTAKES NOW!

"Ludy" Brunamonti sits at a typewriter while Phyllis Jost and Margie Merzweiler, Vincentian staff typists, laugh with Sister Thomas, faculty adviser, at Vincentian cartoons. Tom Strauss, the staff cartoonist, looks on.

M. Cooper and R. Tersigni dramatize a baseball game as the Vincentian staff, E. Vigh, B. Dies, P. Aldrich, D. McGaughey, A. Seib, P. Mills, R. Giffels, J. Weibel, B. Maroon, E. Amshey, and J. Smith, write the story.

BATTER-UP!

Shamrock Staff Strives...

Karen Oberdoester adjusts her typewriter before she begins work as Lillian Shank of the copy staff dictates to Chuck West, head typist. Phyllis Jost punches the keys to the tune of some completed copy. While Margie Merzweiler offers suggestions, Barbara Menches types the dictated words of Bill Semonin, co-copy editor of the 1951 Shamrock.

EDITORS-IN-CHIEF

Oh, for senior class day and the presentation of the yearbook to the student body! Through all the pictures, layouts, and copy, Ann Shircliff and Tom Walter, co-editors, visualize that long-awaited day. Ann and Tom oversee the entire book by scrutinizing photography, layouts, and copy before the book is sent to the printer. Final details, such as judging and choosing the appropriate print types and the cover are the duties of the co-editors. With their competent staffs, Tom and Ann hope senior class day and the 1951 Shamrock will be long remembered.

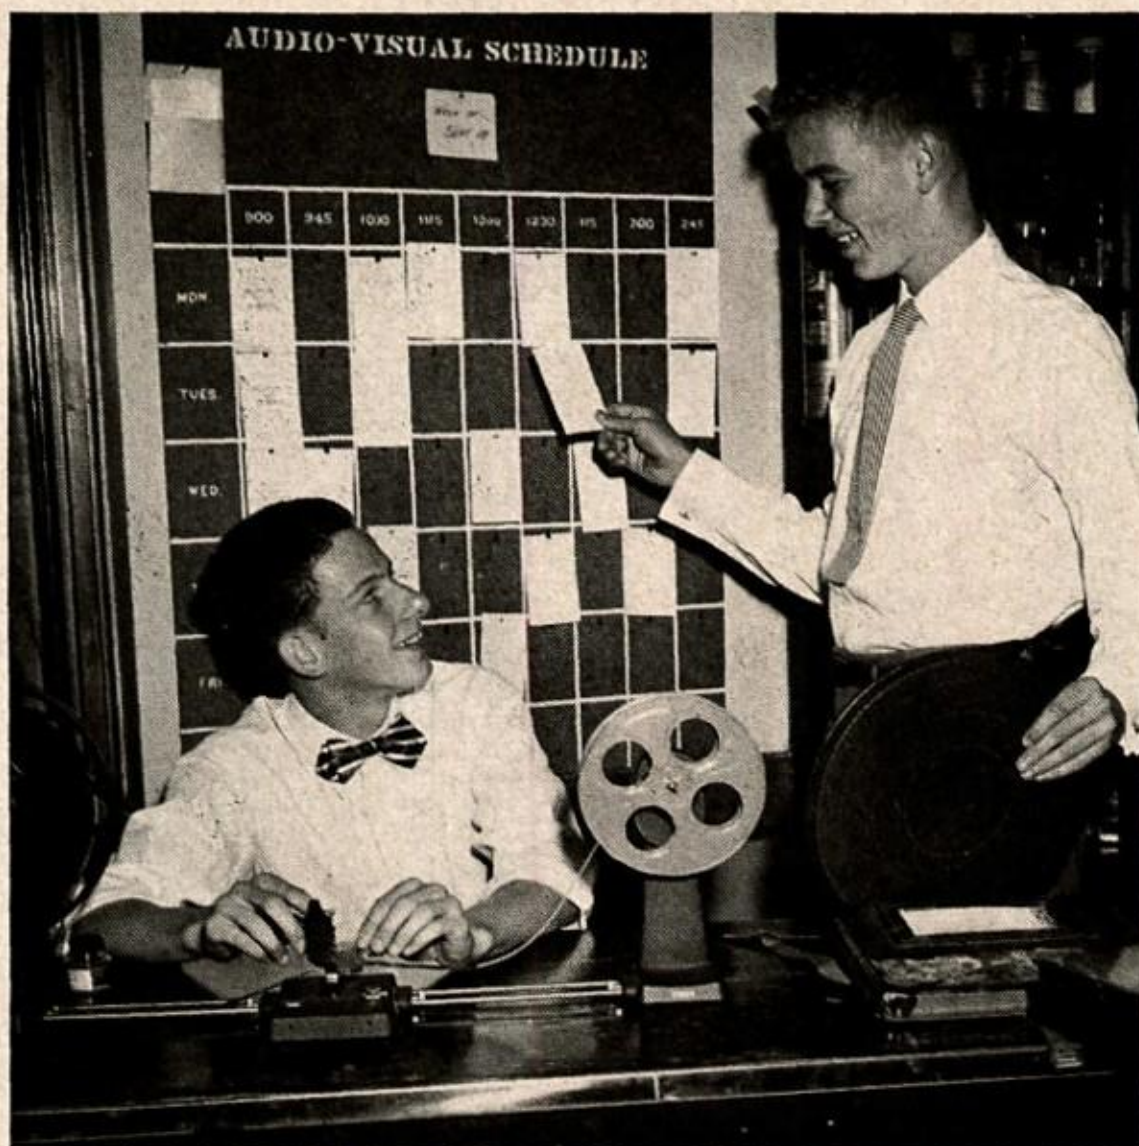

...For Highest Honors

The yearbook first takes shape when the layout staff draws up the dummy. Here Jim Dierker applies the abilities he acquired in mechanical drawing class to measure the full-size sheet according to specifications. Checking a divisional page for a possible sketch or layout are Rita Weirtz and George Seikel while artist Barb Gombar asks Doris Seikel for her opinion of the outline. Tom Horning and Helen Schlosser find their work enjoyable while Marie Selby and Joan Latham check the file envelopes for pictures and Tom Strauss leafs through a book for thumbnail sketches. These jobs are all part of a day in the life of a layout staff eager to put out a good book.

Credit Is Surely Due to...

Splicing film, repairing the projector, and carrying various equipment throughout the building is all in a day's work for Bob Pfeiffer and Larry Kovalcik. These juniors operate and repair the film projector, balopticon, and other audio-visual aids. The stacks is a familiar room to every library assistant. Rosemary Quinn and Claire Huber search the shelves for an elusive magazine while Kathleen Bell shows Nelda Coyle the next book title to be typed. Marg Kurtz files the cards that have been typed.

...Deserving Service Assistants

Junior and Senior girls gain first hand experience in the first grade as Pat Laughlin explains the sum and Pat Jost assists her. Serious Mary Ann Hutchinson seems very intent on her reading. Below: Not a day goes by without the office assistants to help Sister Julianne with the school's clerical work. Joan Latham takes a phone call as Joan Labbe assists Ludy Brunamonti type a report. Carole Lucas helps Barb Moffitt find the right card in the files while Sister Julianne gives Dot Leyden material for the library.

Water, wind, or snow do not stop our faithful band members from turning out, thirty-six strong, to do their half-time performance. Early school arrivals find the members hustling around school to be on time for eight o'clock practice.

The pigskin is in the air and now — St. Vincent has it! There goes Tom Hillery down the field. Expressions on the faces of the crowd range from disbelief to uncontrolled delight. He's going to make it —

...By Majorettes and Cheerleaders

WINNING SMILES!

Majorettes Nancy Morgan, Dolores Poje, Sue Meadows, Anastasia Scott, Donna McGaughey and leader Toni Lukacik personify the pep of the football season. All six have the three requirements for a good majorette: vim, vigor and vitamins. The last is needed to withstand the "cruel cold" and "deep mud" of football days. Sophomores Nancy, Dolores, and Sue show that underclassmen are well represented. In high strutting style junior Donna and senior Toni prove that dance routines are a big help.

TUCKERED OUT!

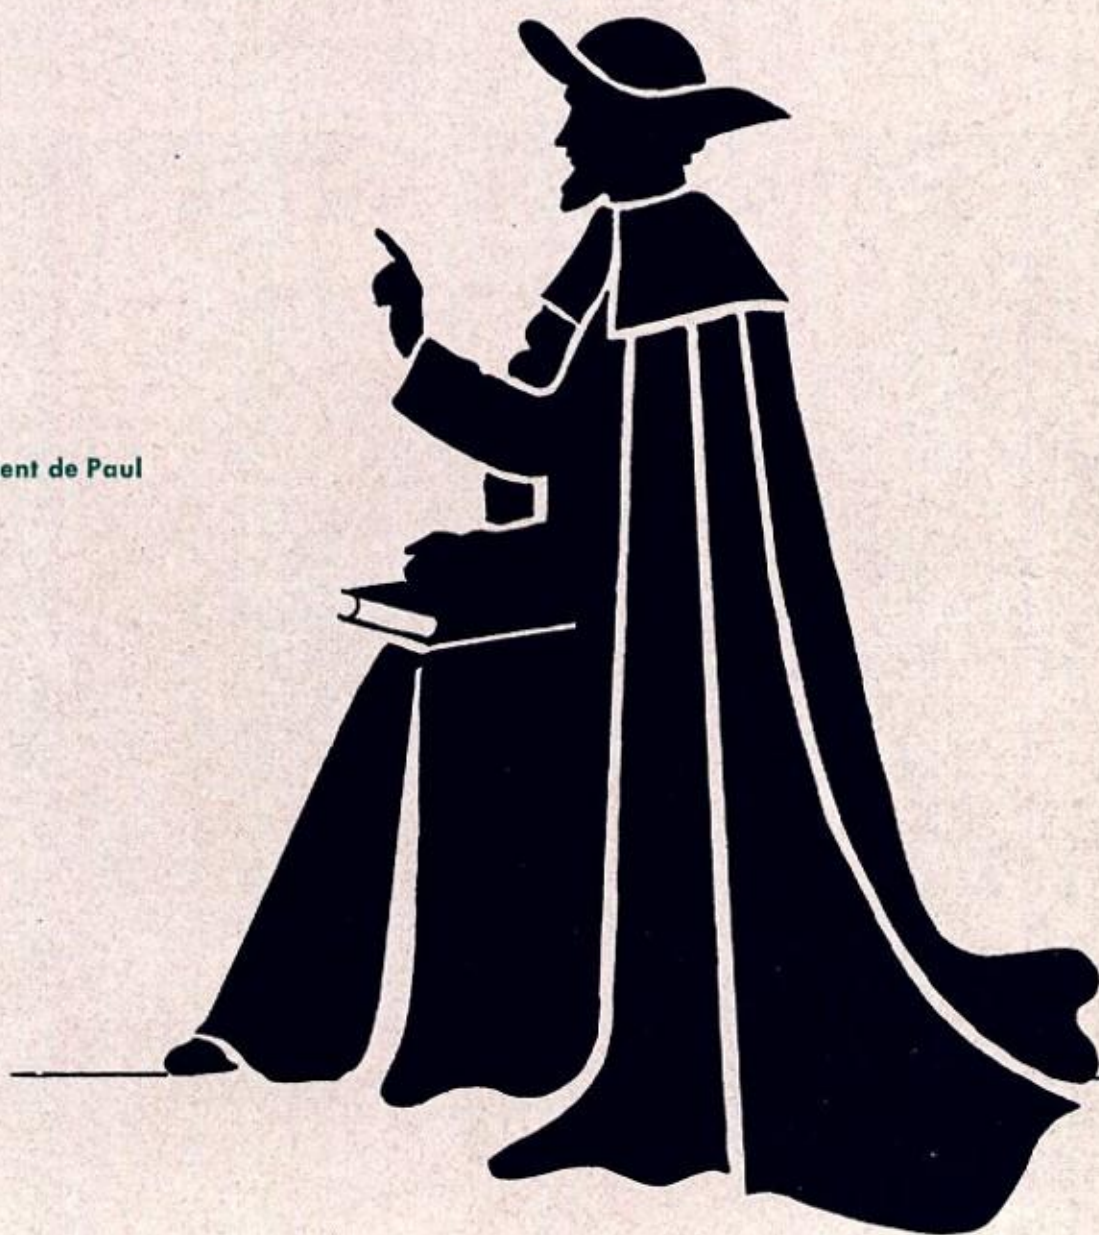

The St. V. fireball cheerleaders are seen at an unusual moment of non-movement. Pete Cistone, Jim Dierker, Jerry May, Paul Gill and the absent member of the quintet, Frank Volpe, will deserve a little rest after such strenuous stunts as their usual handsprings. Shiny new shamrock green outfits add to the high color and thrill of any game. Although some stunts appear quite dangerous, nothing seems to faze the five with their "All for St. Vincent, stand up'n holler!" and the entire student body gladly emits a loud "Yea!"

With the Spirit of Courage

We meet the challenge of co-operation with the spirit of courage. No hardship was too strenuous, no duty too difficult, no undertaking too hazardous that St. Vincent did not whole-heartedly dedicate himself to the completion of the task. Pauperism was a national problem which St. Vincent courageously undertook to alleviate. We are proud to share in this spirit of courage which lifted our patron to success. Courage is the guide that inspired us on the gridiron, on the courts, and in the stands. Active participation in sports builds character and strong bodies, and develops the ability of individuals to work together with the spirit of courage.

"The grace of perseverance is the most important of all." —St. Vincent de Paul

1, 2, 3, 4 - Who Are We For?

The "Fighting Irish" of St. Vincent were known as the "Surprising Irish" in 1950. For it was this team that astounded everyone by posting a record of six wins, while only twice during the pigskin panorama did the squad taste the gall of defeat. The fact that five of the six wins were consecutive victories shows the consistency of the team members who placed St. Vincent among the city's top-ranking teams. Every man was out to win, and win they did! The team was green; only a few had any previous experience. But when the season was over, coaches of the other Akron teams wished they could have had access to some of this green material. The squad ran their point total up to one hundred nineteen, while holding the opponents to eighty-nine. Week after week cheers resounded from Green Street Field as the "Irish" rolled on. Only once did the team lose on home ground. Except for that occasion the team seemed to be encouraged by the atmosphere of the home gridiron. The victims of the "pigskin parade" were Kenmore, East, Buchtel, Central, Falls, and St. Mary's. The only two defeats were at the hands of a scrappy and inspiring West High team and mighty Barberton, a top-ranking team in the State. Yes, it was a season to remember and one of which the school may be proud. The senior team was bolstered throughout the season by offensive players Chuck Albanese, Louie Baldacci, Chet Bekeleski, Paul Slaven, Red Hubbard, John Raub, Don Eisenhut and Chick Kormanik as well as defensive players Jerry Stitz, John Benson and Jim Hallinan. Defensive Juniors were backed by sophomores Chuck Pfeil and Joe Elio.

Crowning Climaxes Successful Season

Cooperation Spells Success

The 1950 "Irish" Varsity was bolstered by the strength of many stalwart seniors. Sharing the duty of co-captaining the team to a successful season were Paul Baldacci, Larry Hamlin, and Tom Hillery. Paul Baldacci gained All-City recognition for his rough and tumble performance at the guard position. Larry Hamlin was outstanding at the quarterback slot because of his smooth ball-handling and accurate passing. Tom "Scooter" Hillery was a stellar halfback whose brilliant running on offense and jarring tackles on defense put the punch and spring into the Irish juggernaut.

Elmer Haddad
Tackle

At guard, Stuhldreher was dependable; he opened the holes on offense and plugged them up on defense. Tom Smith added spark to the offense and vim to the defense at halfback. With the brawn to back up his assertion Elmer Haddad always had an argument for anyone who tried to penetrate his tackle position. Russ "Moose" Masturzo, bulwark of the Irish line, was named to the All-City and All-State teams as a tackle. As he crashed in from the end of the line, Ken Lauck harassed many opposing backs. His specialty was defense. Larry "Doc" Sovacool had the spirit and ability to carry out his assignments as end. "Doc" was always the first to get mad and the last to cool off. Another asset to the team was Tom "Mighty Mouse" Gillen. Tom operated from the guard position and was always in the thick of things. To the senior members of the Varsity—Thanks and congratulations for your efforts in bringing recognition to the school.

Courage was...

St. Vincent 13 — Kenmore 0

The Irish opened the season with a deserving win over a rugged Kenmore eleven. Larry Sovacool scored the first marker, followed later by Tom Hillery's 33-yard sprint.

St. Vincent 20 — East 14

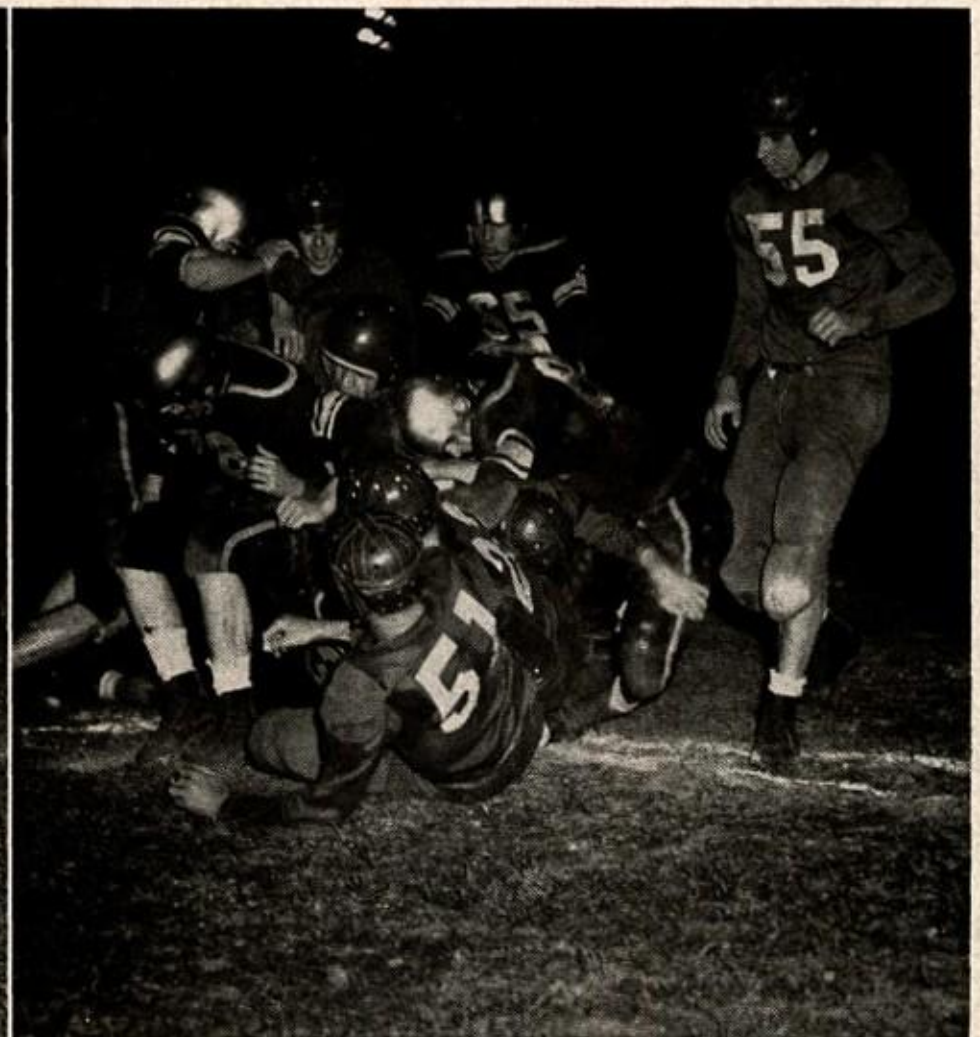

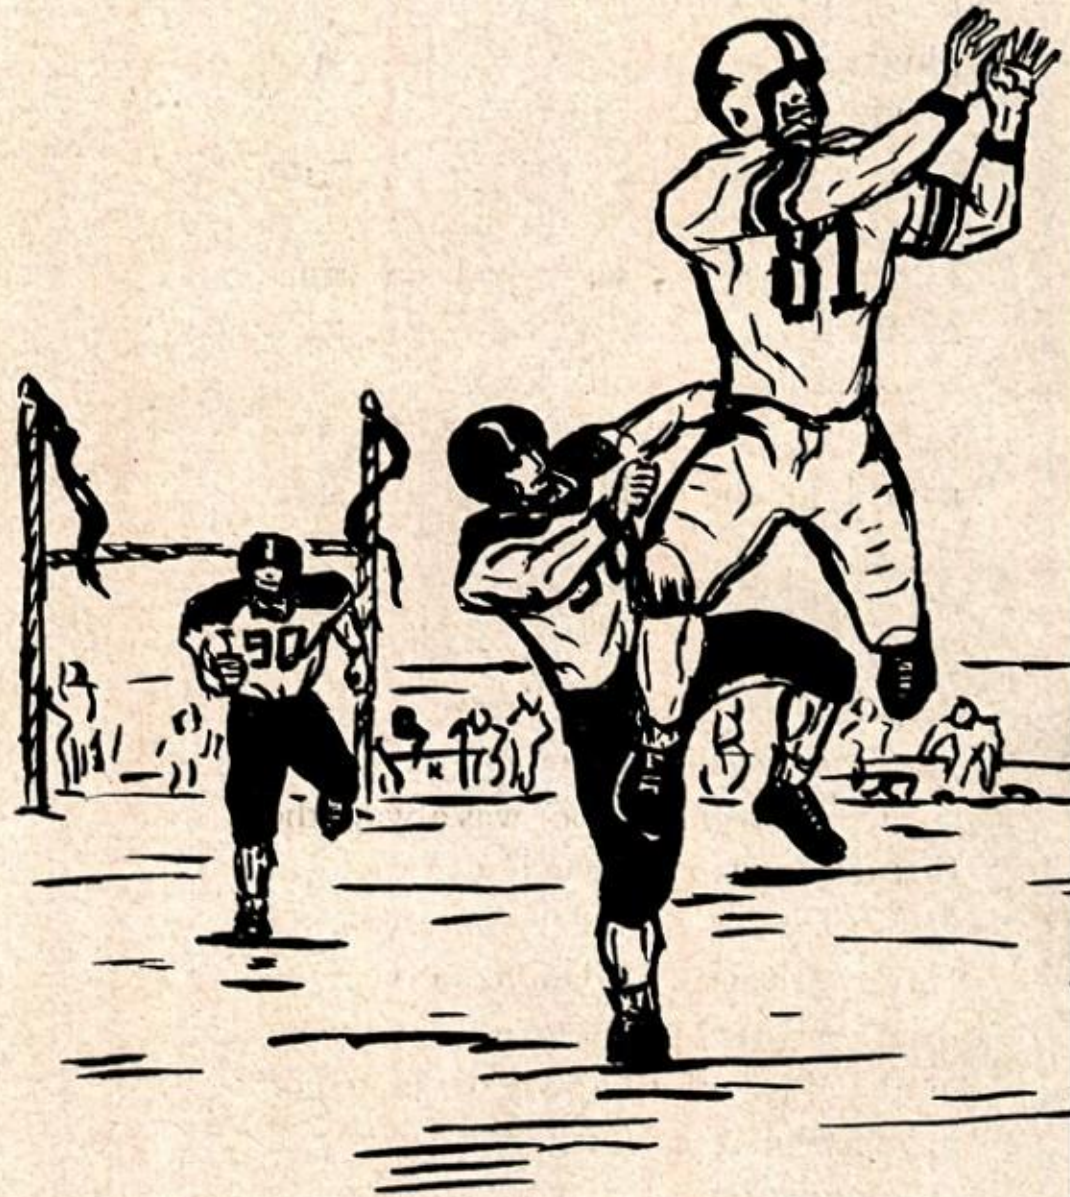

Smooth running juniors boosted the Irish to their second victory. Paul Slaven, Jerry Stritz, and Chuck Albanese scored for the Irish. L. Baldacci booted the extra points.

St. Vincent 14 — Buchtel 6

Hard charging linemen and speedy backs shredded Buchtel's defense as Chuck Albanese and Tom Hillery scored for the Irish to dump Buchtel from the unbeaten ranks.

St. Vincent 19 — Central 13

Held at bay by a big Central team most of the game, the Saints exploded in the second period. Markers by Tom Hillery and Chuck Albanese put the Irish ahead.

. Never lacking

St. Vincent 20 — Cuyahoga Falls 7
Led by Larry Hamlin and Chuck Albanese, the Irish proved more than the Tigers could match. Off to a slow start the Irish then romped over their traditional rivals.

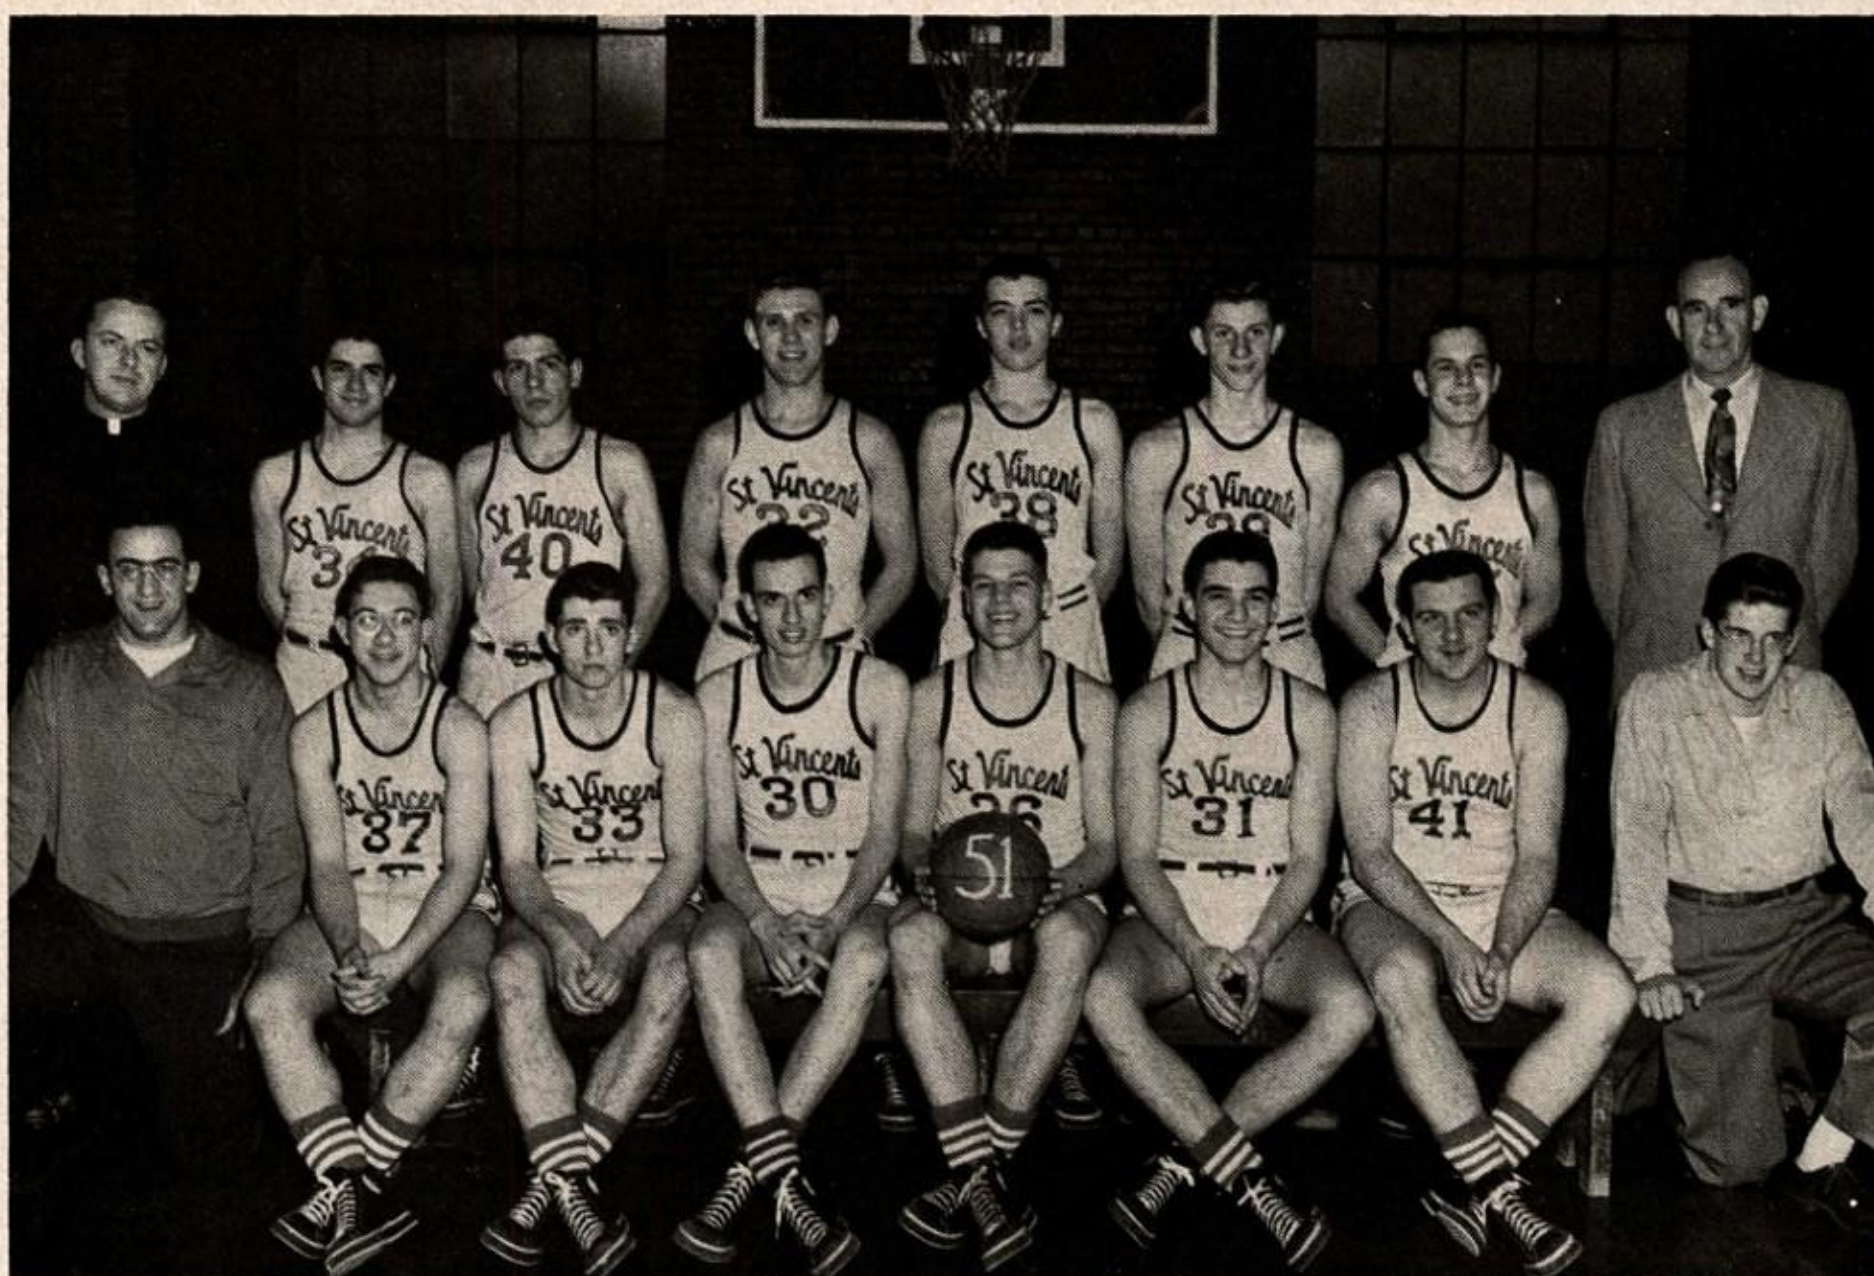

St. Vincent 7 — West 13
A stunned Irish team tasted their first defeat at the hands of an underdog West eleven. The rough and spunky Cowboys kept the Irish to a lone tally by Lou Baldacci.

St. Vincent 6 — Barberton 36
The Saint's best was not enough to stop the runner-up State Champs. Larry Hamlin scored for the Saints as the Irish crumbled under the Magic attack and mighty Mitchell.

St. Vincent 20 — St. Mary 0
Successfully ending their season, the Irish snared the parochial grid crown for the third year. Hillery led the Irish with two T.D.'s; Bekeleski made the final tally.

The Calm Await...

The 1950-51 basketball team was probably one of the most unpredictable, never-say die hardwood combines to come from St. Vincent in many years. For this was a team held together by three seniors and five juniors. Only one, senior-captain, Don McGaughey, had seen service in a varsity game. Yet with this handicap of inexperience, the undersized Saints more than held their own with other teams of this district by their fighting spirit and their refusal to quit giving their best at all times, despite the odds. During the nine games of the first half of the season, the Irish played good, bold, thrilling basketball, but, were rather in and out as far as victories were concerned. Then after the Massillon game, the now famous St. Vincent pressing defense, coupled with a devastating fast break, was employed. With this style of play the Irish really found themselves and won five of their last seven games. They started out by winning four straight but faltered as they were upset by West and dropped a hard-fought game to Barberton. They then came back to edge St. Mary in the season's final. In the district tournament, this year's team really proved themselves. With great student support they walloped weak Ravenna, beat tough Kenmore, and put on a spectacular rally to upset the powerful City Champion, North, for their best victory of the year. Towering Coventry ended this streak when they received the benefit of 32 fouls called against the Irish. Two Irish stars were lost early in the game on personals. Though out-scored from the field, Coventry held off another great St. V. rally to win from the Saints in the semi-final round. Congratulations to the 1950-51 team for a job well done. Your play was a definite credit to St. Vincent athletic and basketball history.

... The Storm

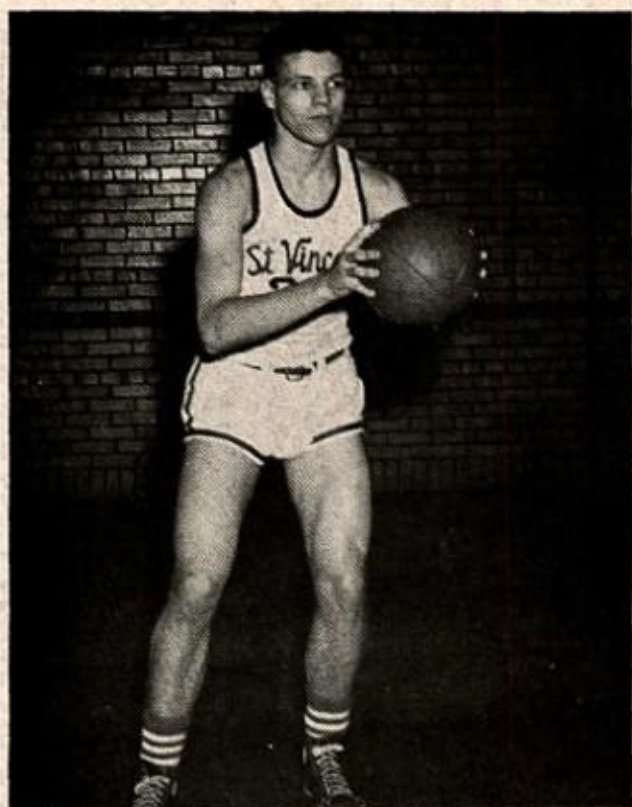

St. Vincent effectively used the potent "fast break" to score, but also defended against it as shown here. Paul Baldacci and Jerry Stitz speed to aid Louie Baldacci who is trying to stop South players, Shershing, Beck, and Thigpen, from scoring in the hard-fought contest, which South won.

Golfers Test Spring Green

The 1950 edition of the Irish golf team was a great one. When the dust from the sand traps had cleared and all the divots had been replaced, the Irish found themselves in second place in the City Series. Cuyahoga Falls, crown-holders, edged past the lads of St. V. $8\frac{1}{2}$ to $7\frac{1}{2}$ in a close deciding match. Number one man on the squad was Jim Mulhearn whose score between 76 and 80 kept St. V. standing high. Larry Hamlin and Jim Hallinan came through with scores in the 80's, while Jim Meadows, number two man, added punch with scores in the high 70's. "Mighty Mite" Tom Gillen produced spark with his scores in the low 80's. It was a good year for the Irish linksters.

PATRON FEE GO-GETTERS

Leading the parade of Shamrock go-getters are seniors Pat Philbin, Larry Hamlin, Barb Gombar, Betty Maroon, Joe Metzger, Tom Hillery, and Mary Jean Wozniak. These were the first to ring the bell of a fulfilled pledge. The Home Ec Department feted these and others who met the deadline to fill their pledges with a buffet-style luncheon.

Thanks are extended to Moms, Dads, students, friends, and businessmen who all came through in fine style to back the relentless efforts of the business staff. The collaboration of the students' zeal and the patrons' cooperation produced another fine St. Vincent annual.

The faculty and students acknowledge with gratitude and appreciation the all-out efforts of these Akron business men who have given the 1951 Shamrock its professional touch.
